the following letter from H. C. D. Harding Esquire Ag. Collector of Buddapah Current No. 4492 of 1898. dated 16th December 1898.

I have the honor to state that the rhyots of many villages of the Jammalamadhy Division comprising the Taluqs of Jammalamadhy, Proddatur and Pulivendla have been asking for postponement of Collections till harvest. The Land Revenue Kists for Fasli 1308 have already Commenced. The agricultural position is that the South-West Monsoon was of no use in the Division and practically no crops were raised on dry lands except under wells till September and October last. Since then the whole rent has been sown with Cholam, Korra, & sold horsegram and so forth. I have just ridden round Pulivendla, Jammalamadhy and again Proddatur and back to Buddapah.

of that Taluq. and I found that crops, which are for the most part allent, are standing now. There has been almost no harvest up to date and will be none till January and onwards. 1897 was a poor year and 1896 a famine year and consequently I believe that many ryots have not money at their command at present and cannot easily borrow till harvest.
Hence I have issued the following orders to the Tahsildars and the Divisional Officer of the Division and request that my action may be approved.

(a) Dry lands: - Though the rains have come late, there are prospects of a fair to good harvest on dry lands. In January and February, Cholam will yield a plentiful harvest and no dry remissions can therefore be given. Sooner or later all assessment must be paid. People who have wells and have had harvests under them must pay their lists as usual and also such rich men as can easily afford to pay. But poor people who have had no harvest up to date need not be worried by attachments and sales of property till harvest.

(b) Wet lands: - many irrigation sources which received supplies of any value these will be a certain amount of dry crop (torioakammi) to be granted. Amounts likely likely to be remitted on account of waste and shavi need not be collected till January is over.

(c) Ryots who have had no harvests yet this year but will have them in a month or two and whose lands were waste in Fasli 1306 and 1307 need not suffer attachment till harvest but those who have had their harvests this year already or who had ordinary harvests in Fasli 1308 have crops on the ground now with north exceptional circumstances, although they their lists when due. As there are arrears of Fasli 1306 and 1307 to be cleared off it would be well to credit all collections at first to such arrears and clear off the arrears of those faslis crediting subsequent payments to Fasli 1308.

(d) The concessions given now are intended solely to save people unnecessary worry and the expenses of borrowing at ruinous interest - All arrears of Fasli 1306 and 1307 and current lists must be collected in full by the close of the Fasli and people must be clearly made to understand that if they abuse the concessions now granted and try to evade payments their lands and property will be sold up without mercy and such concessions will under no circumstances be made again.

Finding the North of Buddapah in the same condition, I have extended the same concessions to that Taluq after consulting the Divisional Officer and Tahildar. These concessions will not affect collections within the Taluq at all but will save people a lot of hardship at present. The general complaint is that they have in 1307 had to pay Riots of 1306 and 1307 as well as maintain themselves during one famine and one poor year and that there is no money with the ryots and as they - many of them - still owe the moneylenders they cannot raise the money that way. If I had not recognised the situation and passed these orders we should in fact get very little paid in and will cause a lot of needless hardship by collecting the few things people have left. From the end of next month all will go on easily.

3. The concessions about wet lands extend to almost the whole of the Division District as the supply in the irrigation sources is deficient in parts of all Taluqs. The Tahildar will be asked to report the amounts covered by these postponements in their monthly demand collection balance statements.

Resolution.
The instructions issued by the collector are approved.
