Proceedings of the Madras Government, Revenue Department,
28th February 1877.

Famine Relief.

No. 885. Read the following letter from H. E. STOKES, Esq., Secretary to the Board of Revenue, to J. H. GARSTIN, Esq., Additional Secretary to Government, Revenue Department, dated Madras, 21st February 1877, Miscellaneous No. 2,623 :—

By G.O., 22nd December 1876, No. 2,131, Government were pleased to authorise the Board to entertain, as a temporary measure, six copyists to cope with the great mass of MS. copies of Proceedings and orders which, owing to the present pressure of famine-work, have to be emergently issued. The Board regret that, notwithstanding this assistance, they are compelled to make a further similar application. Including the six hands already sanctioned, the Board have now fifteen men of their own Office, and for the last month have had six men from the Office of the Director of Revenue Settlement, in all twenty-one, engaged in copying work. The Settlement hands have now been withdrawn, and the fifteen remaining are quite insufficient to turn out the work required. This will be evident when it is stated that for three weeks ending 17th February, comprising seventeen working days, 9,565 pages MS. of Proceedings left the Office, giving an average of 27 pages a-day each for the twenty-one men. This is exclusive of occasional copying work done by other clerks and of the ordinary clerical work in the Office. At the above rate the fifteen men will have to turn out 37½ pages a-day which cannot be done. The Board, therefore, request temporary sanction for six more copyists to replace the Settlement hands withdrawn. The cost will be Rs. 150 per mensem.

No. 886. ORDER THEREON, 28th February 1877, No. 872.

Miscellaneous.

THE extra establishment asked for is evidently necessary, and is therefore sanctioned.

Sir,

By G.O. 20th December 1876, No: 2181, Government were pleased to authorize the Board to entertain as a temporary measure 6 Copyists to cope with the great mass of MS: copies of proceedings and orders which owing to the present pressure of famine work have been emergently issued. The Board regret that notwithstanding this assistance they are compelled to make a further similar application. Including the six hands already sanctioned the Board have now 15 men of this own office for the last month have had been from the Office of the Director of Record Settlement, in all 21 engaged in copying work. The Settlement hands have now been withdrawn and the 15 remaining are quite insufficient to turn out the work required. This will be evident when it is stated that for 3 weeks ending 17th February comprising 17 working days, 9565 pages of proceedings left the office, giving an average of 27 pages a day each for the 21 men. This is exclusive of occasional copying work done by other clerks of the ordinary clerical work in the office. At the above rate the 15 men will have to turn out 37½ pages. for 17 days which cannot be done.

The Board therefore request temporary sanction for 6 more copyists to replace the Settlement hands withdrawn. The cost will be Rs 150 per mensem.
