dated Madras, 10th March 1880, No. 58-G.

With reference to G.O., dated 9th March 1880, No. 904, I regret to find that the Government consider that I have acted wrongly in not communicating to them through the Revenue Department my intended departure to England upon medical certificate, and I trust that you will explain that I made every inquiry regarding the usual course to be pursued and understood that it was customary to send in application for leave through the Military Department alone, and this was the course adopted by Colonel Hessey in 1877 when he went home under similar circumstances.

2. Colonel Hessey's case is not parallel at all. That officer was seriously ill and unable to work for a long time before he took leave and the Government in the Civil Department were fully aware of his impending departure, and prepared to make arrangements accordingly.

3. In future all applications for leave submitted by Military Officers in civil employ will be referred, on receipt by the Military Department, to the Civil Department concerned, for consideration before leave is granted.

No. 200-231.

Colonel Rogers' explanation of his failure to give intimation to the Revenue Department as to his impending departure to England. — Seeing that Government are unable to consider sufficient or satisfactory; and directing that in future all applications for leave from military officers in civil employ be referred, on receipt by the Military Department, to the Civil Department concerned, for consideration before leave is granted.

Note

It has been ascertained that Col Rogers followed, as stated by him, the usual procedure, which is as follows:—

A military officer in civil employ sends his application for furlough to the Adjutant General, who sends it on with the Commander-in-Chief's recommendation to Govt. in the Mil. Deptt, where it is sanctioned and gazetted. Cases showing this are put up.

Colonel Rogers' explanation is accepted.
