The duties of the two officers named may be said to be of a similar nature to those of a British officer in the same service.

Antony, who is a British officer, is a highly responsible person, and his duties are of a highly responsible nature. He is in charge of the public works and the new one more and more of the public works.

On this understanding and on the assumption that the Government of Madras in assessing their pay have acted on the principle laid down in article 806 (1)(2) of the Civil Service Regulations, under which the pay of an officer should not exceed what is ordinarily allowed for similar duties in British service, there is no objection to the orders issued by the Madras Government.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

Algaubla

Under Secretary to the Govt. of India.
