State that corundum is reported to be available only in one or two fields in Godalakatta, hamlet of Jorimala village, Thakki taluk and that too in quantities hardly sufficient to induce speculators to prospect for the mineral in that place. In fact it is so scarce that the Tahsildar is unable to get any specimens.

2. In December 1895, the right to mine these stones was put to auction but there were no bidders to purchase the right although notices were sent to the surrounding taluks.
