It is submitted that in the peculiar circumstances of Mr Standen's case (i.e. as it is just possible though not probable that he should have to vacate his appointment at the end of five years) it is neither advisable nor necessary to formally confirm him in his appointment by this Govt the matter is in fact in the hands of the Secy of State and it is for his Lordship to decide whether he should be made permanent or sent away after the end of five years.

The G.O. is now in the Press but to avoid delay the current paper is submitted for orders without waiting for it.
