SIR,

In paragraph 4 of Government of India Resolution No.4/45.1 dated the 16th March 1896, on the subject of the wider application of the Glanders and Farcy Act, XX of 1879, Local Governments and Administrations were informed that when commissioned officers of the Army Veterinary Department were appointed Inspectors under Section 4 and Veterinary Surgeons under Section 7 of the Act, the powers of these officers in the former capacity should be limited to the cantonments in which they serve or which they periodically visit on duty.

2. It has since been represented that, it would benefit military interests, if the limits within which these officers may be empowered to act as Inspectors were to be extended so as to include the areas adjoining the Cantonments in question whence the danger of infection spreading to Government animals is greatest; and upon a reconsideration of the question the Governor General in Council is of opinion that some such modification of the restriction is advisable.

3. It has accordingly been decided to extend the areas within which Army Veterinary Officers may be empowered to act as Inspectors under the Glanders and Farcy Act to the area lying within a radius of 5 miles from ea
