6. When the holder of Mokhasa dies leaving ~~none~~ more heirs than one, Government can choose as successor the person best qualified to succeed and most acceptable to the people vide G.O.No.2337,Judicial, dated 30th December 1880 but in this case really the widow is alone is truly an heir. I accordingly recommend that the widow may be informed that adoption by her, Lingareddi will be registered as Mokhasidar of Kavilikk and that she should perform the ceremony of adoption within three months. Whether the Inam allowance should be continued to the widow or the adopted son or discontinued, I must leave Government to decide. No doubt it was continued in perpetuity to Lingareddi's heirs but an adopted son of an adopted son adopted after the death of the last Mokhasidar by the widow seems hardly according to western notions an heir of the original grantee Lingareddi. I am rather inclined therefore to suggest that this allowance should be continued to the widow and ordered to lapse with her as she is the last surviving heir at the present moment of the original grantee and has no issue.
