			and are now waste and there is no likelihood of their being taken up again. The ryots want everything for nothing. The lands included in the reserve are others with which the Government can deal as it deems fit. 2. I have seen the places and am of opinion that the ryots cannot have much difficulty in securing pasturage for their cattle or firewood for domestic consumption if they only take pains, as there are lands outside the reserve which can be utilized for the purposes. 3. The block marked by the Forest Department having been everybody's property, heretofore was nobody's, and there is now nothing for them to use for firewood, &c., therein. The Forest Department will hereafter take care of the same, and when the ryots are in need of it, they can pay a little for it from the reserve. 4. The petition is useless and is dismissed.		The claim advanced by them is not one of right. Their houses are far from the reserve and though there are lands cultivated by them here and there near the reserve, there are others fit for cultivation and which were held on patta one time, but were subsequently relinquished in the reserve are others with which the Government.
