I shall see that no G.O.s embodying rules or customs having the force of law or are likely to be taken into count are issued bearing dates during which there is no properly constituted Govt. It would appear that strictly speaking speaking no G.O. could be issued with the dates above referred to.

Since writing the above it has been ascertained (1) that in the R. & M. Dept it is proposed not to issue any order till a new member is appointed and (2) that in the Public Dept they have kept back all important papers i.e. papers which are not merely routine.

Orders are solicited
