Subject.

Forwarded to Government.

The Collector's suggestion to adopt the local habitation of each set of Offices referred to as the starting point under Article 1091 Civil Service Regulations involves the adoption of two different points in one and the same station for calculating travelling allowances which is opposed to Article 1091 Civil Service Regulations.

The Dy. Adjutant General, Madras Command, who was consulted on the subject, says that steps will be taken in communication with the Collector of Trichinopoly to fix one central point in the station from which a journey is to be held to commence or end and that the Route Book will be modified accordingly. The delay in forwarding this case to Government has been caused by the detention in the Dy: Adjutant-General's Office of the Collector's statement which had to be called for.

The Collector of Trichinopoly reports that the public offices are located in different parts of the town and that loss is incurred by the adoption, in the case of travelling allowance bills, of the starting points mentioned in the route book for the towns, irrespective of the situations of the several offices therein and of the rule that the chief public office namely the Collector's office, should generally be taken as the starting point from which a journey is to be held to commence or at which it is to be held to end. vide art. 1091 of the C.S.R. He therefore suggests the advisability of the offices being allowed to adopt their local habitations as the starting point under the article referred to.

The Board supports the proposal and submits it for the sanction of Government.

2. The Accountant-General

however, in forwarding the papers, observes that the Collector's suggestion involves the adoption of different points in one and the same station for calculating travelling allowance which is opposed to article 109 of the C.S.R and that the Dy Adjutant General, Madras Command, who was consulted on the subject, says that steps will be taken in communication with the Collector of Trichinopoly to fix one central point in the station from which such a journey is to be held to commence or end and that the route book will be modified accordingly

Submitted that the Accountant-General's remarks may be communicated to the Board.
