Rajamundry is a rain-recording
station for Provincial purposes, and the person in charge of the rain-gauge is ^{probably} also in charge of the Imperial Observatory
which is merely rain-gauge
& a condensation for measurement.

The Local Net Reporter is publishing a local chart and gets information as to mind direction & force, and the many birds do have the information combined.

Is there any information in the Net as to the number & nature of the observations in this Messy. If so please put it up.
29-4-98

Reference is solicited to pp 219-220 of the Madras Admin Report for 1892-93 - post-up.

It will remain an ordinary taking rain reporting station & they more - if it is included in the Board's list. We don't want to keep up any "provincial" Observatories ~~outside~~ in addition to the Imperial Observatories. The Imp. Net. Dpt. is the best judge of the necessity of a station & if it decides to abolish it as superfluous its judgment should be conclusive & we may tell the A.F. & alone unless the H.M. thinks the D. of Rev. should be consulted, then I doubt the need of troubling it even formally. The decision of course makes no difference to any arrangements the H.M. may make.
