To

The Secretary to Government

REFERENCE. G. O. No. 3442^{mis.} dated 23 August 1898 sanctioning the assignment to the proprietors of Eathorne Estate of certain extent encroached upon and requesting Zincograph map of Ootacamund.

Sir,

I have the honour to report that the mistake appears to have been made by a misreading of the original Theodolite field book and traverse.

I am however unable from the records in this Office to fix the responsibility on any particular individual.

I have the honour to be

In the course of an enquiry into an encroachment upon 11 cents of ~~adjoining~~ Govt waste land by the proprietors of Settlement No. $\frac{B}{566}$ (known as Eat home), Ootacamund, it was found that the extent encroached ^{upon} was shown as forming part of the Settlement number $\frac{B}{566}$ in the plans attached to the permanent patta issued in 1896. Referring to this, Mr.
Cowie, Acting Colly of Nilgiris, reported that the plans in question were prepared in 1895 from the Zinograph of the Ootacamund map in the Central Survey Office, that this latter had been corrected, ~~and~~ under the initials of the officer in Charge of the Central Survey Office, but that the authority under which the correction was made could not be traced. The Govt eventually decided to ~~not~~ give up the entire extent in favour of the proprietors of Rathorne; but the Supdt of Revenue Survey was requested to investigate the circumstances in which the correction referred to came to be made in the Zincograph of the Botacannund map.

2. In reply, the Supdt now reports that the ^(appears to have been) mistake ~~was~~ made by a misreading of the original Theodolite Field book and traverse, but that he is unable, from the records of his office, to fix the responsibility on any particular individual. May the current be 'recorded'?
