This Village and another (Kuraikkal Mandram) were granted on the tripe tenure as an appanage for the support of the Poojah of the Pagoda called Sri Venkatachalapathy Swamy, which is situated on the Hill of Tirupatty in the Carnatic Payenghaut, and for the support of the Choultry for the reception of Travellers and Pilgrims who resort to the Pagoda. The Grantee had three sons, of whom one died a bachelor, another (Kuraikkal Mandram) left an only son named Venkatachalapathy Mandali, and the third, named Viswanadha Mandali, was the father of the present holder. The Grantee having died in the year 1802, the Grant was renewed in favour of his grandson Venkatachalapathy Mandali, who succeeded to the Village on the death of his father, and was put in possession thereof by the Collector of Nellore. The Grant was renewed in favour of the present holder, Venkatachalapathy Mandali, who succeeded to the Village on the death of his father Viswanadha Mandali, the original Grantee.

The title of the present incumbent is disputed by Venkatachalapathy Mandali, the son of Kuraikkal Mandram Venkatachalapathy Mandali, who was put in possession of the Village by the Collector of Nellore in the year 1832, but was dispossessed by the present holder, who succeeded to the Village on the death of his father Viswanadha Mandali, the original Grantee.
