... extent is incorrectly larger than the grain in the account of 1774. This being a garden being surrounded by well defined boundary marks, beyond which an encroachment could not be made, the large excess must be attributable either to the difference in the length of the rods adopted at the 2 measurements, or to the excess having taken the original lines as forming a portion of it or perhaps to these causes combined to produce such a large result. No complaint of excess appears to have been made ... the last Pymash which gives such a large extent as now seen. I therefore treat the difference of area between the two results as forming a portion of the original Inam lines.

These Inams are like the one in the following case all [illegible] held free of tax and entered in the Turabadi and Dumb accounts under the head of Brumdoker

In consequence of their enjoyment for upwards of 60 years free of tax I recommend their being confirmed on the existing tenure.

I recommend freehold so long as the pagoda is in good order.

(4) The Tarappady account is more correct & according to it the Tope becomes a valid Inam.
There is at any rate ~~any~~ no

This Inam is entered in the earliest accounts
as the flower garden of
"Nagore Swami"
by which is meant the Tomb of a certain Swami.
In the Pymash
however, the land is entered
as dry unarable
waste.
The Tope is held for the Tomb
or Samadhi.
The Tahsildar treats
this under the Pymash entry
as of doubtful
age & imposes
a ¼ Q.R.
