This is a vacant Inam pending an enquiry consequent on the death about 8 years ago of Rajammal daughter in law to the party in the 15 Col. She had no any issue. One Ponnambala Mudili husbands grand fathers younger brother's great grand son another Komarasami Mudili Father in law elder brothers daughters son to the deceased Rajammal. Claim x this Inam stating that the deceased executed a Parasanamah authorising them to take possession of all the property after her death and produced the above documents of which the Parasanamah held by Seeningada Mudili father of above Ponnambala Mudili is executed in 1837 and that held by Komarasami Mudili ⊕ is executed in 1830. The execution of these documents by the deceased Rajammal to the above individuals is established by the witnesses who attested them.

The Village Maniyagar and the Ryots who cultivate the Inam land depose that the above Komarasami Mudili took possession of the Inam land and a house belonged to the deceased Rajammal agreeably to the conditions of the Parasanamah and protected her till her death and the above Ponnambala Mudili or his father never enjoyed them which the above Ponnambala Mudili admits. From a Razinamah bearing date 5th April 1843 found in the Taluq Records it appears that Venkatachala Mudili & elder brother of the ⊛ above Ponniyammudili withdrew his claim to the property left by the deceased Rajammal. Although the above Ponniya mudili and his elder brother Venkatachala Mudili are the members of the family to the deceased, yet the above Venkatachala Mudili withdrew his claim to the property left by the deceased and the above Komarasami Mudili had possession the Inam land as well as a house left for the deceased by the last 33 years. Under these circumstances I confirmed the Inam to the party in Col. 16 and refer the above Ponnambala Mudili to the Civil Court for redress if he has any claim.
