In 1236 Brimonadayam Inam Dry and garden 164-7-0	Amattaray Subbaramayyan 55	Daughter's Daughter's son to the party in 1212, and transferee of last holder another daughter's son of that party	wife — 1 sons 5 Married Daughter 1 7		There is a doubt as to the tenure of this Inam — Whether it is a Personal or a Charitable Grant — There is no original Grant available to settle this — In the account of F 1212, it is entered as "Bhatavarti" or Personal Inam — In F 1223 ~~the~~ each is entered in Sachaya's Inam as an inam for Annadanam Charity in Mangamma's Chattram — with a remark that the Chattram having been ruined, the Annadanam was conducted ~~[illegible]~~ in a temporary shed — But I consider that this is rather a personal Inam, 1st From the entry in the earlier account F 1212, supported by the entry in 1236. 2nd From the fact that the account of F 1223 ~~in which~~ is not much reliable in ~~as much as~~ consequence of its being a mere Compendium of the statements delivered by the Inamdars, without containing any authority or attestation — and the general notion among the Inamdars that their interest would be better guarded by attaching to their Inams conditions or services, which had not up to that time existed — a notion which made them state nominal services which they never performed — The Inam is under these circumstances treated as personal — The present actual Holder is Venkataguruvian aged 70 without any heirs — He is the daughter's son of the party in 1212 — He has transferred his Inams under the Deed in Col 12 to Subbaramayyer & applied to the Tahsildar for a registration of the transfer — The Transferree is the Daughter's son of another Daughter of the party in F 1212; yet as he is no heir to the transferrer, To be confirmed in one T.D. on ½ Q.R.
