Sheet Darmasaram Village of Kulendal in Aramete Mangalam Taluk of Channarayana Zamindari & State in Madras

The donor person N 12 is a son of his having executed the Bill & pleads that he was executed as the donee promised to settle some of his domestic goods in favour of him but failed to do so - that therefore he will not give the lands to the donee - The donee N 13 is the natural son being the adopted son of the person N 12. The donor person says that they know nothing about the document & that they never affixed their signatures to the document - The document proved to be genuine - The donee has no enjoyment of the lands - As no alienation will be valid unless the abovesaid holds the lands actually, I rejected the deed of gift, registered the land in the names of the persons N 12 & N 13 & refused the parties to file for suit. The transaction took place a month ago. Previous to which the donee had not any interest in the lands - The N 12 & N 13 have shared their lands in the village equally - Hence they have equal interest in the alienated lands -

Valuation

I have been asked of you a list of mud estates & etc. There are also 2 small tanks - they are fed by Anglo Stream & by the tanks of the neighbouring Agre Village - The tanks are used for supplying channel of one of the influential ones - The tanks are filled annually - some are most unfavourable seasons - The Mahagowams planted 23 acres of what he as waste. They say that they are cultivated once in 2 or 3 years - It is true that in every village some lands are left annually waste from want of water or cultivation. But the lands 23 acres of lands are not left waste annually - the lands are cultivated & time to come - & occasionally once in 15 years - The dry waste requires no remark as the content is trifling - Soil of the village is of a medium character generally - & some of the lands are of an inferior quality & some are of a superior quality of the soil - This is on the whole pretty good small village - I have no materials to enter here the average rate of assessment of the neighbouring Agre Village - The Agre Village is situated close to this & under settlement is an Aramete Mangalam & Aramete Mangalam. The average dry rates prevailing in these villages are at 1/8 - per acre - The Agre Village situated in the vicinity of the Darmasaram are important ones - Security of the land is held occasionally - Average dry rates are 1/8 - per acre - statement of the Mahagowams are 238 - of the dry of Agre 515 - is deducted the net profits are 725 - This is not true - I have stated the statement as a true one & use of the statement viewing & least the nature of capitalizing with in the dry in which Darmasaram is situated - After entering into much details about the fertility of soil & the present valuation in the same with the aid of the Mahagowams - No tank is raised in the village -
