III... The father ^{the widow} younger brother of the person... ^{deceased} of years ago - leaving two Daughters (one 34 & 1/2 & 1/2) & a young girl of 16 - On the one of his death he divided all his property, movable & immovable, between the two daughters on 3/4 share of 1/4 share for his wife of 5/16 & two shares for his daughter - at one each - The will is written in a plain paper - This village consists of no villages - The lands are irrigated as shown in the margin of the preceding side - Porcupine paid on the value of lands irrigated by each - The lands are undivided -

III... ^{Value} The Helioornian (land) 161 sum of Day & the lands as - Porcupine & gave a written copy of the questions about it that there are - are not fit for cultivation - they say the lands there planted as Porcupine grow every year - it is said that the lands are irrigated by a small stream of water - It is said that a small stream of water is irrigated by a small stream of water - of Kungsh & 8 & 40 of Pungsh are cultivated annually - Well lands - cultivated & land come with Raggy & to a small extent - Part of a meadow - Generally - No security of water is felt - The country near the village is muddy - The average of the last 15 years of the said year, village of Helioornian as - are - The is four hundred of the village is raised - The average as per statement of the Helioornian is 136 to 137 quite fair - The cost of the fertilizing of soil & I frame the value of the village as follows -

at 61 sum at 1/2 of Porcupine - 244 -
 Day 8 1/2 sum at 1/2 of Porcupine - 850 - 250 -

The last rate I have charged falls below that of the country near the village - The average of the Helioornian includes some of the double crop lands while the village under settlement contain very few double crop lands - It is said that the Dam lands are inferior to those in the Helioornian - There is a river between the Dam lands and the Helioornian - The Dam lands are irrigated by the Helioornian & vary from 0.3 to 0.5

Not present - The Helioornian is not present -
