Handwritten document with multiple columns of text, including names, dates, and numerical entries. The text is written in a cursive script, likely from the 18th or 19th century. The document appears to be a record or ledger, possibly related to land or property transactions. Key elements include:

- Columns: The document is organized into several vertical columns. The leftmost column contains dates and times (e.g., "1825", "1826", "1827"). The middle columns contain names and titles (e.g., "Rajah", "Rajah's", "Rajah's"). The rightmost column contains numerical entries (e.g., "100", "1000", "10000").
- Handwritten Notes: There are numerous handwritten notes and annotations throughout the document, often written in a different script or language than the main text. These notes provide additional context or details about the entries.
- Signatures and Stamps: The document features several signatures and stamps, including a large, stylized signature in the center-right area. There are also various official stamps and seals, some of which are circular and contain text in a different script.
- Language: The primary language of the document is English, but it includes significant portions of text in a different script, likely a South Asian language such as Sanskrit or Hindi. This suggests a bilingual or multilingual context.
