A photograph of a heavily stained and discolored piece of aged paper. The paper is a light tan or beige color, showing significant signs of age, including yellowing, foxing, and large, irregular brown stains, particularly on the right side. Faint, dark ink handwriting is visible across the surface. At the top left, there is a line that appears to read "St. Louis". Below this, the word "MEXICO" is written in a larger, bolder script. Further down, another line of text is partially legible, possibly "St. Louis". In the center, the word "King" is written in a large, flowing cursive script. At the bottom left, there is a date "11/18/83". To the right of the date, the word "MEXICO" is written again in a similar script. The overall appearance is that of a historical document or a collection of notes that have been severely damaged by time and environmental factors.
