to Rayats and rest in a great measure on their own authority; I however believe that the truth has not been materially understated. It will be seen that there is a very large proportion of the op. of Rayats stated to remain waste, but this is not by any means an improbable circumstance as the village is of poor soil and is a rocky tract and most of the waste is little Capable of being turned to account and may fit for the very inferior and unprofitable op. of Chavayachali.

The British officers have however agreed to add Rayats 300 to their Cultivation return on account of waste fit for future Cultivation which they stated at Home 600 appraisable with half a Rayat a Town.

Thus added to the Rayat forming the bases of Rayats Cultivation is Rs 500 which however being still considerably below the estimated Rayat (Rs 2275) given in the Register of 1818, may possibly be taken to the remark that the returns are not trustworthy. My conviction from the inquiries I have been able to make, is however
