In the Treaty transferring the Danish settlements to the British Government, of which a copy has been obtained by the Collr. from Government on [illegible], nothing is specifically said regarding the future treatment of the Enams. Article 10 is the only one which contains any provisions regarding rights of persons or of property, and it is worded thus. "The inhabitants of the aforesaid settlements, Europeans as well as Natives who continue to reside within the settlements will be placed under the protection of the General Laws of British India, and their religious personal and acquired rights as formerly enjoyed under the Danish Government will be respected as all rights of persons or property are throughout British India."

In the survey Register of 1805, already mentioned, the rate of [illegible] for each field is specified. Under the Danish Government the rates [illegible] fields or fields of the same [illegible] being ascertained the [illegible] was collected. This system continued in force for [illegible] years after the assumption of the territory by the British and was afterwards abandoned. [illegible] fields bearing the same [illegible] [illegible] was taken the amount of [illegible] thereon [illegible] commuted into money & the [illegible] for the fields [illegible] collected from the Ryots. The [illegible] taken [illegible]. In assessing lands newly taken up and [illegible] on [illegible] the average settlement per Vali, which is the entire [illegible] of the village divided by the number of Valis cultivated, is taken & the [illegible] thereon on the [illegible] 40% commuted into money at the commutation rate [illegible] the avg. per Vali. Five or six years ago when an account was prepared of Enams, with their assessments, 45 [illegible] was adopted, on the [illegible] the average [illegible] per Vali thus calculated on the highest rate the average [illegible] is lightly being Rs 27-11-4 per Vali for this village. I have therefore adopted as [illegible] settlement [illegible].

No Adangal of either kind is available for this Enam.

[illegible] under the Danish Government. After the cession of the territory, the Collr. in subjecting these [illegible] exempted until further orders all Topes held by religious and charitable institutions. In the accounts then taken of such lands, the Enamdars [illegible] the extents by estimate, & all the Enams as held were not included in it. Memorandums made by some Enamdars previous to preparing the Enam Registers required in this Office showed large differences. All the circumstances connected with the Enams in these 18 villages, & the claims of the Enamdars founded on the declarations in the Adangals & the freedom of registering all alienations, that the Enams are absolutely freeholds, were reported to the Commr. & his instructions solicited in my letter of the 23rd Octr 1862 No. 45. With reference to J.D.'s extracted with the letter referred to, from the Commissioner's instructions he observes that "they appear to be simply certificates given by the Commissioner who examined the lands of the Tranquebar Territories, recognizing the existence of certain Enams; that the wording of one of them is general and does not convey any right than is inherent in the tenure of the Enam as interpreted in the other Taluks of the District; & that the other explicitly declares the tenure to be inalienable." "Before deciding however to what extent such declarations in the certificates in question should be respected" it was considered necessary that I should "ascertain from the Collr's records what was the nature of the authority vested in the Commr. who granted the above certificates, & what provision was made regarding the future treatment of Enams in the Treaty by which the Tranquebar Territories were acquired by the British Government" & I was authorized in the meanwhile "to proceed with the Enam investigation, recording in the Regr. the nature of the titles by which each Enam is supported & leaving the final settlement of the question to the Commr." — My suggestion that the investigation of the [illegible] Enams, of which as I have above stated the exact extent is not known, may be postponed for the present, i.e. pending the survey, was approved.

With reference to these instructions I had to revise all the cases which I had disposed of, preliminary to the Register the [illegible] Enams & to prepare the cases of [illegible] with specific information regarding the nature of the titles which support.

The Register of the Danish [illegible] a report [illegible] was made through the Collr. [illegible] relating to the appointment [illegible] regard the [illegible]

The village in which the Enam is situated is one of 18, transferred in 1845 by the Danish to the British Government. In almost all of these there are Enams, consisting some of wet lands & others of dry alone and some again of both. The wet lands, and I see much of [illegible], appear to have been surveyed between the years 1795 & 1805 & the land Register then prepared in the Danish language is the only public record available for our reference. This account shows simply the survey numbers and does [illegible] what fields were then Enam & whose the holders were. A set of [illegible] called "Adangals" specifying the [illegible] of the fields was prepared from this Regr. & granted to parties on application. All sales or other transfers of lands, Enams as well as Taxable, after [illegible] have been [illegible] registered by the Danish Government & "Adangals" granted on these occasions also. The terms used in some of these "Adangals" are that the holders shall enjoy the lands or dispose of or use them in the manner most advantageous to them, while in others they are much explicit, the parties being therein empowered to "sell or mortgage" the Enams. There is no record or public [illegible] of any kind about [illegible] of this [illegible]

The extent in the enjoyment of No. 1 is more by [illegible] of the 500 Kulis entered under No. 1 in Col. 15 which Subbaiyalu Naicker purchased in the year 1817 from [illegible] Pillai (son of Vaiyapuri [illegible]) named in the Col. This is another of the 18 Tranquebar villages. The village account or Register prepared under the former Government between the years 1798 & 1804 is not available for this village – nor is there amongst Danish Records [illegible] the Register of [illegible] have made a reference to any other account or document of any kind relating to these Inams. With the Carnam there is an village account bearing date 1805 & the Inam is entered in it. The entries are quoted in Col. 15. The origin of the Inam is not clearly known. There appears from an old agreement which No. 1 [illegible] of 1800 [illegible] signing that one Pancha Pillai, who held 12 Velis in this village as Inam [illegible] more than 3 Velis, [illegible] & the Nattukattumalai & Abhishekakattalai in the Tranquebar villages & with the agents of the Inam Kattalais made over some lands [illegible] father. Whether they were [illegible] or in part portions of the 3 Velis or [illegible] for there is nothing [illegible]. The portions belonging to the Nattukattumalai are entered in the village in the name [illegible] No. 1 [illegible] holders alone what had belonged to the Abhishekakattalai. This latter is said to have been sold by a Danish Court of Judicature to Rajagopalaswami Nayakkan, in whose name it appears in the account & [illegible] No. 1 enjoys alone none of the lands. As the extent of them is not known – they could not be brought on this Reg. [illegible] of what has been [illegible] land where there is nothing to show that the Inam is old.
