Thus the will of the testator is not to be construed as giving the property to the children of the testator, but to the children of the testator who are living at the time of his death. The children of the testator who are living at the time of his death are the children of the testator who are living at the time of his death.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf from an old book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and faint smudges. A small, dark brown stain is visible near the center of the page. A faint vertical crease runs down the middle, and the left edge shows the binding structure.
