Case No. 1	Devadayan	As per the account of 1209	3 Kolas 4.86 at 10-5-4	31-0-10		For the support of Saravanan	Tax free	Roman	Not known	No annual produced	In F. 1209 for	In the Jamabandi of F. 1209 for	Tuppasipatti	Saravanan Kovil	Roman Catholic Priest	Vicar Missionary	Pedro Siquel's	Motta Corveta	The Inamdar files statement for an extent of 22-14-0 of land as the lands of the Inam Village. The Palagan, Vakil has entered in his list of villages, Tuppasipatti as Inam and represents the extent of the village is not only 1209, but that the village was a Molampala village. That the Palagan had given subsequent to the permanent settlement some lands + tanks to Inam - of which the Tuppasipatti enjoy some land + that it can not be treated as Inam. This Tuppasipatti Saravanan Kovil has got an Inam in the Village of Anandadi duly shown in the account of F. 1209 and it was settled in good Inam without dispute. The documents copies of which have been sent to me by the Inamdar after I reached Trichinopoly, are an exact copy of the Dry + Wet Inams of the Palagan Marudur Vanitham for Anand 978 (F. 1209). This gives a list of the villages constituting the Palagan Marudur Vanitham 22 are named of which, Devasthanam Bava Kovil Village, Tuppasipatti Jamabandi was one and at the end of the list. Devasthanam Tuppasipatti was deducted and then commenced the Inam Jamabandi particulars of the remaining 11 villages. The Jamabandi opens with a list of Kuchikandam Inams; and then details the annual Inams; among these the following entry appears viz. Tuppasipatti Inam Pottal Thanda 3 1/2. All this proves just that the document contains an entry of its own Inam, and declares the fact that the village of Tuppasipatti was a Devasthanam Village" deducted from Jamabandi. No copies	Confirmed on present terms	16th April 1866.	T. D. No 1194
