Offences on the Shoranur-Cochin Railway. The Agent and Manager, Madras Railway, informed that the Foreign Jurisdiction and Extradition Act, XXI of 1879, deals not with the procedure in regard to the surrender of criminals, who have fled from justice out of British India into a Native State, but with the converse, and that, when a person has committed an offence in British territory and afterwards escapes into a Native State, application for his arrest should be made to the British Magistrate having jurisdiction to try the case, who can, at his discretion, move the Political officer, through the usual official channel, for the surrender of the accused. October 22, No. 1611 (Press).

Offences under section 215. Indian Penal Code. Stated that the Government do not consider it desirable that — should be made organizable by the police, but are inclined to think that it would be to the public advantage if complaints of such offences were made triable by second-class Magistrates; the Honourable the Judges of the High Court requested to favour Government with their views on the point. October 7, No. 1532 (Mis.).
