HYDERABAD SUBSIDIARY FORCE.
First Day.			Yards.	Yards.
1st Battalion, R. S. Fusiliers 1st Native Infantry 9th do. do.	Secunderabad	1st	Not given.	1120 570	1,038	4·27	1. POSITION.—The position selected was a ridge about 1,700 yards due west of the village of "Kanajegoodium ;" the extent of front was about 420 yards due east. 2. OBJECT.—The dummy enemy's force of 14 guns, 1 regiment of Cavalry and 2 battalions of Infantry thus represented :—600 chatties and 12 dummy officers in shelter trench as the fighting line ; 300 chatties as extended supports and 8 screens 6 feet high as reserves, 7 screens 9×9 as limbers, 14 guns in Batteries on flanks and in centre, with a total of 24 dummy gunners, 9 screens 9 × 9 as Cavalry on right and left rear flanks respectively. 3. THE ATTACK.—In three lines (i.e.), fighting lines, supports, and main body ; latter deployed at one pace interval each man to fire an equal number of rounds at each stage (viz., 6 rounds). The attack was repeated each stage until each man's allowance of ammunition for that particular stage was expended. The supports reinforced the fighting line, after having expended the ordered number of rounds, these retired and formed up in rear of the main body ; the latter then advanced and took up the firing. Instructions were given to fire at the dummy enemy generally, and not to be confined to any particular parties thereof. 4. GENERAL RESULTS.—Number of rounds fired 20,760 ; percentage of hits to rounds fired 12·27. 5. REMARKS.—The firing of the men of the Royal Scots Fusiliers was very deliberate and kept well under control by Company and Section Commanders. The firing of the Native Infantry in general was too hurried and far too suggestive of the rapid blank firing of a field day. The firing of the men of the 1st Native Infantry was more carefully controlled than that of the other Native Infantry regiments.

Second Day.							6. SECOND DAY'S FIRING.—Position and object same as on first day. 7. ATTACK.—Same mode as on previous day. Through inadvertence the 38th Regiment Native Infantry only fired 1,476 rounds, while the 28th Native Infantry fired 264 rounds in excess of their allotted allowance of ammunition for this stage. 8. GENERAL RESULTS.—Total rounds fired 25,880 ; percentage of hits to rounds fired 12·83. 9. REMARKS.—The undulating nature of the ground frequently necessitated portions of the line firing in the standing or kneeling positions, instead of lying down, and from its hard nature the effect of shots striking it, especially in the first stage, was not visible.

MYSORE DIVISION.							1. OBJECT.—A field work. Front about 280 yards with 80 yards of shelter trench in extension on their left, and two guns stationed 150 yards to their left rear. Supports and reserves placed in the usual manner, the reserves being directly in rear of an Armstrong butt. 2. ATTACK.—Vedettes advanced to within 900 yards of enemy's position. On coming to within about 1,200 yards of position, fire was opened by 12 picked men from 2nd Battalion, Hampshire Regiment, with a view to find the range, the Brigade meanwhile forming for attack. From this point to within about 900 yards of the position owing to a dip in the ground the latter was invisible. At 900 yards range the fighting line joined the scouts, the position being now visible from the standing position only. At 750 yards (estimated 600) the fighting line was reinforced by supports when volley and independent firing was opened by sections. At 500 yards (estimated 400) the main body reinforced the fighting line which then advanced by distances of 50 yards to within 250 yards of the enemy's position (estimated distance 300 yards). Volley and independent firing by sections, battalions, and companies. 3. REMARKS.—At the long ranges the "unaimed" fire was most effectual, while at the shorter ranges the Armstrong butt attracted the fire and so protected the reserves. The guns were not visible till the line approached to within 400 yards of the position, and then they had to be pointed out. The shelter trenches were low and on account of the length of grass were not well seen, preventing as it did the men frequently from firing in the kneeling or lying down positions. In real warfare the battery would have suffered greater loss as the flash of the guns would have drawn our fire upon them. The firing of the 2nd Battalion, Hampshire Regiment, was steady and under control, and there was no hurry or confusion, but owing to the nature of the ground the result of the firing was not good. The difficulties that prevented the men firing in any one position would have occurred in actual warfare, and for that reason field firing should always be carried out in difficult and broken grounds, although the result of the practice might not be so effective. The men evidently require more practice in judging distance, as was proved by the difference between the actual and estimated distances in the second stage. The returns of the firing of the 2nd Battalion, Hampshire Regiment, and Sappers have been given separately as the two corps were armed with different weapons, and the Sappers did not come into action until within 600 yards of the practice.

CEDED DISTRICT.							GENERAL IDEA.—An enemy is supposed to be in position at the village of Toomtah, and had despatched through a gorge in the copper mountains an advance guard consisting of one battalion of Infantry. Two guns and a squadron of Cavalry had advanced towards Bellary and encamped for the night on the road side. First Stage.—A flying column consisting of 2 companies of British Infantry, 6 companies of Native Infantry, two guns and one squadron of Cavalry from the cantonment intercepted and surprised the advance guard from the old Ramandroog road at daybreak, whilst forming to continue its march on Bellary, and in attempting to throw out supports and skirmishers to repel the attack, the enemy sustains a check from volleys and independent firing at long distances. Second Stage.—The enemy's Artillery opens fire and covers the Infantry which advances, and takes up a position in front to cover its main body. These advanced troops being attacked are repulsed. Third Stage.—On the enemy's advanced troops being beaten back, they formed on the main body which, in the meantime, entrenches itself, protected by a line of skirmishers advancing to repel the attack in its front. An attack on the main body is made. THE ATTACK.—First Stage.—At 6-35 A.M., when the ground had been cleared and the position was discernible, the British Infantry opened fire by volleys, concluding with independent firing on the main body, advancing towards the position after each fire. On the British Infantry concluding, 6 companies of the 37th Grenadiers were brought into action under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Tyrrell ; advanced in line and opened fire in the same way as the detachment, 2nd Somersetshire Regiment had done. Second Stage.—In this stage the whole of the troops advanced together attacking the advanced troops of the enemy which consisted of three supports and a line of skirmishers, the Cavalry in support. The attacking party was divided into three lines ; the supports and reserves relieving the fighting line, and repeating the attack until all the ammunition was expended. Third Stage.—In this stage the advance of the troops was made according to the "attack formation" under Lieutenant-Colonel Tyrrell ; the 2nd Somersetshire Regiment extended on the right, and the 37th Native Infantry on the left, wing of 37th Grenadiers forming the reserve. On the fighting line being reinforced by supports, the advance was continued by alternate double companies at 185 yards from the position the main body reinforced the fighting line, a rapid independent fire was then opened and continued for some time. This closed the attack. The Cavalry formed up on the left flank during the third stage and executed skirmishing dismounted. REMARKS.—On the whole the men were well controlled, the Cavalry mounted and dismounted readily. The distances were indifferently estimated. Colonel Claridge, 37th Grenadiers, is of opinion that as a rule more effect from the fire would be ensured at these long distances with a vertical aim, according to the old system, which is more readily understood by Natives than according to instructions conveyed in Circular Memorandum No. 2717/E, dated Simla, 9th December 1878 (Madras Memorandum No. 290, 5th March 1879).

BRITISH BURMAH DIVISION.							POSITION ATTACKED.—The position was a very gentle rising ground, crescent-shaped, with a few small trees on it, the long grass and bushes all cut down so as to allow the chatties to be seen ; two guns on each flank and two in the centre, those in the centre being placed in one pit, the flank ones in separate pits. Reserves and supports placed in rear of the position. THE ATTACK.—First Stage.—The Brigade was formed as follows : One-third extended to form the fighting line, one-third in support, the remainder in reserve. The whole advanced a short distance when marksmen were sent out as scouts and opened fire with a view to ascertain the range ; this ascertained, the whole attacking line commenced firing from right of sections, then an advance by rushes by alternate companies was made up to within 700 yards of the enemy's position, when the cease-fire sounded. Second Stage.—The fighting line was reinforced by the supports, when the advance was continued by double companies and continued up to within 400 yards of the position. Third Stage.—The line advanced in the same order as in the second stage to within 250 yards of the enemy's position, when a quick independent fire was ordered. On the cease-fire sounding the whole fixed bayonets and took the position by a charge. REMARKS.—It was observed that very little ammunition was expended during the first stage, the bulk of the firing being reserved for the third stage. The position was naturally a strong one and could not have been attacked in front with any prospect of success.

2nd Battalion, Bedfordshire Regiment...	Cannanore	1st ...	1300	980			1. POSITION ATTACKED.—The ground selected was that formerly used as an Artillery Range. It is a narrow strip of open ground on the seashore, fairly level, there being only a few undulations on the part travelled over by the men firing. On the part where the screens were placed there is a succession of small sand-heaps and depressions. The position consisted of a line of shelter trench about 92 yards in length, with chatties one yard apart placed on it. During the first stage, in each instance, 60 chatties as skirmishers were placed 200 yards in front. On the left of the trench one gun was placed so as to appear over a sand-heap, 6 gunners (dummies) being under cover behind it, 2 screens 9' by 9' representing limber and waggon were placed about 50 yards in rear of each other behind the position of the gun; 8 screens 2' by 18' were as supports under cover of sand-heaps about 150 yards behind the shelter trench, and 6 screens 6' by 18' as a reserve about 100 yards, behind that again planted in a sloping position to represent men lying down. Both supports and reserve were entirely hidden from the firers.

		3rd ...	400	400
			215	200	126	7·14
							The nature of the ground did not admit of a greater number of screens being used.
							2. ATTACK.—Under the cliffs the battalion being formed up in quarter column the attack was conducted according to the instructions laid down in the "Field Exercises."
							One company was ordered to extend from the centre at four paces, and scouts were sent out about 50 yards in front to try the range. The scouts opened fire, but as the light was very bad no satisfactory results followed. The scouts were then recalled, and the company advanced halting to fire until it arrived within about 350 yards from the line of skirmishers of the defence. The extended line was then reinforced by the supports, men without ammunition falling out. The distance to the main position was now about 600 yards: the advance was conducted in the same manner as in the first stage. The two reserve companies reinforced as before, men without ammunition falling to the rear: the attacking line advanced by rushes of 20 yards up to 200 yards from the position, and the men having expended in so doing all their ammunition, the "cease-fire" sounded.

							In the last four advances of the first stage there appears to be great difference between the estimated and the correct distances. The reason of this is that the Section Commanders gave the distances up to the line of skirmishers, whereas the correct distances were taken up to the position itself.
							The men were very steady and took great pains with their shooting, but in the first stage a number of rounds were thrown away without good practice being made owing to a very bad light at daybreak.
							3. Remarks.—The report of the 2nd Battalion the Bedfordshire Regiment shows the result of the firing of the Martini rifle. The 34th Regiment, C.L.I., fired by wings, the right wing on the 4th March and the left wing on the 25th March, on its arrival from Mangalore in exactly the same manner as the Bedfordshire Regiment.
							The ground being very sandy and covered with thick rank grass was much against hits from ricochets taking effect, and to that is attributed the very low percentage of hits; moreover the mornings were somewhat hazy, and it was difficult for the men to distinguish objects at a distance.
							1. POSITION.—The object fired at was a position of a depth of about 600 yards representing picquets extended in trenches, 106 chatties 12" in diameter with supports, 20 screens 12' by 3' and reserves 20 screens 12' by 6'; behind the line of picquets and lying down apparently completely under shelter were four figures representing staff officers.
				750			2. ATTACK.—The line of attack was almost due east and west, the angle from the centre of the reserve to the centre of the position attacked being 260° the rising sun was thus behind the attacking force, the dark back ground of Kylasadroog and the perfect stillness of the air were also favorable conditions.
		1st ...		635	76
				615			The four companies of the right wing formed into 6 companies averaging 19 files each, were formed for attack about 800 yards from the position. The fire was opened by 31 marksmen in an oblique direction chiefly on the left of the position on the enemy's reserve screens, they advanced by rushes of about 30 yards each to within 600 yards or so, when they were joined by the fighting line; a movement was then made to the right, a more direct fire and clearer view were obtained at 600 yards: the fighting line was reinforced by the supports, and fire continued by rushes to within 420 yards of position when it was again reinforced by the reserve and the combined line rushed to within about 260 yards of the enemy's picquets, (extended in trenches) represented by chatties keeping up a hot fire every 30 yards or so.
		2nd ...	Fairly correct.	510	152	12·58
25th Regiment, N.I.	Vellore			420			First Stage.—Fire was aimed at reserves and supports, chiefly the former as the others were not in the early rushes visible.
		3rd ...		240	224		Second Stage.—The fire was directed on the supports, a few at the extended picquets.
							Third Stage.—The fire was directed almost entirely on the picquets.
							3. Remarks.—In the three stages the fire was completely under the control of Company and Section Commanders, who also were as a rule fairly correct in their estimates of the different distances.
							The comparatively small number of hits in the third stage is owing to the greater number 1,234 out of 1,458 rounds being aimed at the chatties, and in this stage the character of the fire being more plunging than in the other two, there must have been fewer ricochets: the greater number of the bullets being observed to bury themselves in the débris of the shelter trench just below the chatties, of which moreover the greater part were broken.
							The results of the firing this year show a perceptible improvement over those for 1880, the percentage of hits to rounds fired being 12·58 as against 10·32 of the previous year.
							1. POSITION.—The position attacked was the bund of a tank about 20 feet high and about 3 miles distant from the cantonment. The flanks were naturally protected by rugged rocks covered by scrub, so rendering any flank attack almost impossible. The enemy was represented by small chatties painted white placed along the top of the bund at intervals of about 2 feet. On the right of his position there were 2 guns in the open, represented by 2 old bullock-cart wheels and axles with small empty cases placed on them (a gun-pit was impracticable from the rocky nature of the ground). The supports and reserves were represented by screens made by matting, and were almost completely sheltered from fire by the bund and were at no stage of the attack visible to the attacking party.
				690			2. ATTACK.—The battalion on reaching the ground formed quarter column and then extended for attack, 2 companies extending; 2 companies as supports and the bund representing the reserve. Fire was opened at 690 yards (judged as 800 yards), by the fighting line firing 2 rounds and then advancing about 100 yards and again firing 2 rounds. Half company from the supports then reinforced the fighting line which made a further advance of about 90 yards and firing was continued for a short time. This concluded the first stage and hits were counted.
				500			The remainder of the supports reinforced the fighting line, and 2 rounds were fired at 500 yards (judged as 600 yards); an advance of about 100 yards was then made and 2 more rounds fired. The fighting line then advanced to within 325 yards (judged as 400 yards) of the position when 2 more rounds were fired. This concluded the second stage and hits were counted.
7th Regiment, N.I., Right Wing ...	Berhampore	2nd ...	600	325	226	4·10 4·38
			400	325			The third stage was carried out by rushes of about 30 to 50 yards, made by alternate double companies to within 190 yards of the position (judged as 200 yards) and previous to the final charge several rounds were fired by volley.
		3rd ...	400	190	226	5·22
			200				3. REMARKS.—The ground passed over was paddy fields with rather high bunds which during the first and second stages afforded good cover for the attacking force, but during the third stage the ground was more open, and consequently there was very little cover. The firing as a rule was low and from the greater number of casualties in the centre of the position and the number of hits found on the 2 guns, it would appear that the fire convened rather too much towards those two points. The fire was not too hasty and was throughout well under the control of the company officers.
							1. POSITION.—The position prepared by Lieutenant Manera, 7th Madras Native Infantry, consisted of a shelter trench thrown out from both flanks of a small rocky platform, the whole having a length of about 150 yards. The trenches were capped with small bathing chatties and an occasional dummy representing an officer on the rocky platform. In the centre were 2 guns en barbette with their detachments formed by single targets and dummies echelloned as they would appear with the guns in action. The dummies were constructed of mats cut to a rough resemblance to the human form. The gun party formed a central target about 6 feet high and 10 yards wide, but with considerable open spaces owing to the shape of the dummies. The approach of the attacking party was over, very broken, hard-dried paddy fields extremely difficult to get across. The ground was undulating, having a dip half way and a strong glare made it difficult to judge distances. The stadiometer was used at 1,000 and 600 yards.
							2. ATTACK.—First Stage.—The attacking party having gained a position behind a tank and village the attack was opened by Nos. 1 and 2 Companies, extending with an interval of 20 paces between the companies. No. 3 Company took up a position on the right flank. Volleys were fired with deliberation by companies and sections, and 906 rounds were expended by 129 men between 1,000 and 700 yards.
		1st ...	1000	1000	129		Second Stage.—The enemy's artillery having been silenced the flanking party on the right was withdrawn and joined as support with No. 4 Company in echellon on the left; both companies being partly sheltered by a tank and some trees. The fighting line meanwhile composed of Nos. 1 and 2 Companies with considerable intervals between the files was gradually inclined to the left in the direction of the above shelter. In this stage the direction of the firing which was opened at 600 yards was entrusted to the Company Commanders, who ordered chiefly independent firing by named men advancing by alternate files.
			600	700
		2nd ...	600	550	86	4·56
7th Regiment, N.I., Left Wing ...	Sumbulpore		400	400			Third Stage.—No. 1 Company having expended all its ammunition had to be relieved by No. 3. The fighting line thus rearranged with No. 4 in
		3rd ...	400	370			support, and No. 1 passed to the reserve, and having its left flank secured by the tank, advanced under cover of trees and banks by alternative half-
			250	250	129		company rushes, and subsequently when fully reinforced by combined double-company rushes, the fire being under the control of the section leaders. Firing ceased at 250 yards.
							3. REMARKS.—It will be observed that the damage inflicted was in proportion to the quality of the control exercised over the firing. During an advance from 1,000 to 600 yards two gun detachments were placed completely hors-de-combat by an expenditure of 906 rounds, the firing being cross fire by volleys and the distances estimated although roughly. Between 600 and 400 yards the distance at 600 yards having been taken with the stadiometer, the firing being "independent" the result, considering he distance, was unsatisfactory, not a single man in the shelter trenches being hit. Between 400 and 250 the wildness of the fire shows a great want f control by the section leaders who were charged with its supervision, only 94 hits being scored at the short ranges. In 1,708 rounds and of these its only 3 occurred in the whole length of the shelter trench.
							POSITION ATTACKED.—The position attacked was composed of one ine of skirmishers represented by chatties, of reserves represented by two large tatties about 100 yards apart and of another line of chatties, and lastly an entrenchment formed by a loose stone wall having five embrasures with guns, and the top of the wall lined with chatties throughout its whole length.
							THE ATTACK.—First Stage.—Two companies were extended about 1,400 yards from the enemy's position with twenty marksmen as scouts advanced about 40 yards to the front. The line then advanced, the scouts opening fire at about 1,200 yards range; but owing to the stony nature of the ground it could not be seen where the bullets struck. The scouts, therefore, joined the "fighting line," which advanced to about 1,000 yards and opened a fairly well directed fire on the position, but the majority of the bullets fell short, which was attributed to the men, owing to the nature of the ground, being unable to "fire lying down." The advance was continued to about 600 yards, and on examining the targets it was found that the supports, which were placed about 150 yards in rear of the skirmishers, had suffered considerably.

							Third Stage.—Old "fighting line" was now relieved by two companies and formed the reserves; the new line opened fire and advanced by short rushes of half double-companies from left to within 200 yards of the enemy's position, on which the whole of the fire was now concentrated. The result was very satisfactory.
							GENERAL REMARKS.—During the last stage the distances were very correctly estimated and the fire very steady and well directed, but in the two previous stages the Non-commissioned Officers did not appear to exercise sufficient control on their men and the distance was not so well estimated.

22nd Regiment, N.I.	Rangoon	1st	600	1020 750	80	3·80	1. Position Attacked.—The position is on an extensive plain of rice fields, about 6 miles from Rangoon cantonments, now dry and covered with a light brown stubble of nearly the same color as the ground. The ground in front and rear of the "position" for about 2,000 yards each way is clear of bushes, in front about 1,100 yards from the fighting line of dummies of the "position" the plain is crossed by a small water-course, now nearly dry, across which several dams have been made to enable the troops to pass over to the attack: the "position" is nearly due south from these dams, on either side of line of range the ground is clear of jungle for about 1,500 yards. The fighting line of the "position" is represented by 65 dummies, each about 20 inches square of old brown tent cloth stretched on bamboo frames placed on the top of a shelter trench about 18 inches in height. The length of this fighting line is about 120 yards; the light on these dummies is very bad; they are almost the same color as the parapet of the trench, and the rising sun being on their left, it is difficult to distinguish them and estimate the distance to them. Each of the two supports of the "position" are represented by screens of tent cloth stretched on bamboo frames of the same brown color as the fighting dummies; each screen is 6 feet long by 3½ feet high. On the flanks of each support a gun has been placed on the ground level with a small gun detachment of dummies of same size as fighting line ones, viz., 20 inches square. Guns are of blue tent cloth raised on bamboos to a height of about 3 feet from the ground; on the outer flank of the supports there is also a dummy mortar; these supports are only about 110 yards from the fighting line. About 160 yards in rear of the supports the reserve is represented by 18 screens of same color and material as the supports and fighting line dummies, 2 screens of blue tent cloth, each 9 feet square, represent limbers; the limber screens are placed in echellon about 10 yards apart. 2. Attack.—The attacking regiment sent two companies as fighting line across the water-course with two in support and two in reserve. First Stage.—The fighting line opened fire by trial shots at about 1,000 yards, and ceased at 750 yards. Many of the bullets struck the ground between the 200 yards points in front of the fighting line of the position, and some as far back as the supports as the ground is crossed by the bunds of the rice fields; many bullets bury themselves in them and do not ricochet; others chance to the right or left of the position off the uneven ground, many bury themselves in the parapet of the fighting line under the dummies. When the fighting line ceased firing at 750 yards, the men generally estimated the distance at about 600 yards, the dull color of the ground in the morning light rendered it difficult to judge accurately. No range finder was used. Second Stage.—The fighting line having been reinforced by the supports, opened fire at about 750 yards and advanced to about 380 yards from the fighting line of the position. Third Stage.—The reserve companies having prolonged the old fighting line, fire opened at 380 yards, the men generally estimating the distance as 400 yards; bullets passed over fighting line and seemed to ricochet and hit supports, the line advanced to 200 yards in the manner prescribed by regulations.

11th Regiment, M.N.I.	Rangoon	1st	Under estimated.	1000 670	142	6·47	3. Remarks.—The firing was carried on in the most deliberate manner, the men's positions were generally good, but they fired too much from the knee and not sufficiently in the "lying-down" position. The day became cloudy during the second stage, and made it hard to judge distance accurately. All ranks seemed to take great interest in the firing and to do all in their power to obtain good results. The Officers and Non-commissioned Officers kept their men well in hand, the various advances were steadily and well conducted, and great attention was paid to the arrangements of sights, as the rifle barrels became hot the firing seemed to be rather high. The fighting-line dummies escaped and the supports and reserve suffered in consequence. A good many shots were fired when the position was so obscured by the smoke that the aim could not be accurate, the wind was from the firer's left; when such is the case it would appear desirable that firing should begin on the right of companies and work along to the left, in this way smoke would not affect the aim of men in the act of firing to such an extent as when the whole line fires independently. Portable and easily arranged range finders are much wanted; the color of the ground and dummies made accurate judging of distance very difficult; the varying light also during the firing, owing to clouds passing made it more so. If the fighting line of the "position" had been of greater length, better results would have been obtained. Enemy's Forces.—These were represented by dummies composed of canvas and bamboos, and were formed up in three lines, viz.:— First Line.—Skirmishers—65 dummies, each 21 × 21, placed about 1 yard and giving a front of about 120 yards. Second Line.—Supports—20 screens (6 × 3½ feet) about 120 yards in rear of skirmishers, flanked on each side by one gun and one mortar and with two guns in the centre. Third Line.—Reserves—represented by 18 canvas screens (6 × 6) placed about 130 yards in rear of the supports; about 30 yards from each flank and 10 yards in rear were four large screens (9 × 9) representing gun limbers.

16th Regiment, N.I.	Raipore	1st		950 450	451	20·33	Position Attacked.—The main position of the enemy's post was in the middle of a large expanse of rice-fields from which the crops had been removed; it was perfectly flat and without any noticeable features beyond the small low "bunds" running between the fields. The Attack.—The battalion being ordered to "extend for attack," two companies were extended at four paces intervals, two in support and two in reserve. First Stage.—Scouts being sent out they fired one round each, rejoined the "fighting line," which then opened fire, firing one round per man, advancing and halting alternately by word of command till within 600 yards of the enemy (estimated distance). Second Stage.—The "fighting line" having been reinforced by the supports, the attack was renewed by advances of alternate double-companies of about 30 yards at a time, when, arriving within 600 yards of the enemy's position, the cease-fire sounded. Third Stage.—The reserve now reinforced the "fighting line" and the attack was continued by short advances till the ammunition allotted to each man was expended. General Remarks.—The distances were under-estimated, the result being a large number of harmless ricochets. This error is attributed to the varying light during the practice, as constantly passing clouds caused it to alternate from bright sunshine to different degrees of shade, thus rendering accurate judgment of distance a most difficult matter. The British Officers taking part in the exercise were also much misled in this particular. It was observed that the fire of the attacking force was directed to a very great extent on the dummies in the centre of the enemy's line, those on the flanks being, comparatively speaking, untouched. Although this may be natural, Lieutenant-Colonel Lampen, Superintending Officer, deems it a defect which, by leaving an enemy's flanks unharmed, might lead to serious consequences. The company and section leaders are reported to have carried out their duties well and kept their men well under control, as no hasty or careless shooting was observed during the practice.

6th Regiment, M.N.I.	Trichinopoly	1st		600 100	132	11·24	Enemy's Position.—An entrenched field post, 240 yards in length, with two batteries of two guns, one on each flank, with screens to represent limbers, supports and reserves. The Attack—First Stage.—The regiment was formed up in attack formation on a ridge about 950 yards from the entrenched post. It was determined that the attack should consist of two stages as the ammunition in use with the regiment, Mark IX of 1877, had been reported quite untrustworthy at the long distances. Several marksmen were directed to fire some sighting shots with the 950 yards sight, but all the bullets fell far short of the entrenchment, so the "fighting line" advanced to within 800 yards range, but the whole of the bullets still fell short; the companies then advanced alternately till reaching within 600 yards range when the firing was very much better. The "fighting line," reinforced by "supports," Very good practice made at this distance. Double companies advanced alternately by short rushes to within about 450 yards of the position, when they were reinforced by the "reserve." The shooting at this distance was very good, steady, and well controlled by the Officers and Non-commissioned Officers. Second Stage.—The "fighting line" advanced by alternate companies to within 350 yards range, when it was reinforced by "supports," and the double companies advanced by alternate rushes to within about 200 yards, when they were reinforced by the "reserves." The shooting at distances under 500 yards range was very good, and the percentage of hits to rounds in both stages was 27·27.

A second line of chatties placed on the back of a shelter trench (250 yards in front) represented supports and a line of screens (3½ × 2) behind stumps of prickly-pear bushes represented the enemy's skirmishers. The Attack—First Stage.—Enemy's main position was behind the bund of a river, indicated by 400 small whitewashed chatties so placed as to present the appearance of men's heads. A second line of chatties placed on the back of a shelter trench (250 yards in front) represented "supports," and a line of screens (3½ × 2) behind stumps of prickly-pear bushes represented the enemy's "skirmishers." Advancing to within 500 yards range the "fighting line" opened fire, firing two rounds per man at every 100 yards up to within 100 yards of the enemy. Second Stage.—Having advanced to within 250 yards of the enemy's shelter trench, the fighting line having been reinforced by the supports, fired two rounds per man at this point, four at 150 yards and four rounds at 100 yards. Third Stage.—The "fighting line" in this stage was reinforced by the reserves and the line advanced to attack the enemy's reserve.

30th Regiment, N.I.	Trichinopoly	1st		500 80	204	24·18	Position Attacked.—Enemy's main position was behind the bund of a river, indicated by 400 small whitewashed chatties so placed as to present the appearance of men's heads. A second line of chatties placed on the back of a shelter trench (250 yards in front) represented supports, and a line of screens (3½ × 2) behind stumps of prickly-pear bushes represented the enemy's skirmishers. The Attack.—First Stage.—The regiment was formed into eight companies, two extended in attack formation, two in support, and four as reserve. Marksmen commenced fire at 650 yards range, when the "fighting line" advanced and opened fire at 500 yards range, continuing its advance to within 80 yards of the enemy's position. Second Stage.—The "fighting lines" appear to have now retired and the supports renewed the attack at 200 yards range, advancing to within 100 yards of the enemy's position. Third Stage.—Fighting line reinforced by supports opened fire at 350 yards on the enemy's reserves located on the banks of the river and advanced to 150 yards when the firing closed. General Remarks.—The instructions contained in paragraphs 234, 235, Native Musketry Regulations, appear to have been overlooked by the regiments at this station, the men having been allowed to advance too close to the enemy's position, and about half of the ammunition was consequently expended at short distances. The Superintending Officers have omitted to report on the control exercised by Officers and Non-commissioned Officers over the fire of their men, also on their skill in judging distance.

26th Regiment, N.I.	Palamcottah	1st	Over-estimated	900 600	43	7·79	Position Attacked.—The position attacked was a shelter trench about 120 yards in length, with earthen chatties placed at intervals of one yard to represent the first line of defenders; two dummy guns were mounted in pits slightly in rear; supports and reserves were represented by large figures, chatties and mat-screens. The Attack—First Stage.—One company having extended, advanced under cover of a palmyra tope and opened fire at about 900 yards from the shelter trench; as the cover got thinner as they advanced, the men were ordered to incline to the left and eventually finished the first stage behind a tank bund about 600 yards from the position attacked. Second Stage.—No. 2 Company was ordered to prolong the line to the left, and advanced through a tope of trees and scrubs, which together with several paddy-field bunds afforded good cover; the line advanced by rushes of half-companies to within about 400 yards of the enemy, when the Second Stage concluded and one company retired to form the reserve. Third Stage.—No. 3 Company relieved No. 2 and continued the advance, also by half-companies, to within about 200 yards of the shelter trench, when the "Third Stage" finished. Remarks.—The men were well in hand during the whole attack and took advantage of all available cover. At first the distance was over-estimated and the firing consequently high, but after the first round or two the Non-commissioned ranks estimated the distance well and the men fired very steadily.

GENERAL ORDERS

BY

HIS EXCELLENCY THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
MADRAS, 4th February 1882.

From what the Commander-in-Chief has seen of the regiments of Madras Infantry which have come under his notice, His Excellency is satisfied that sufficient care is not taken by some commanding officers in the matter of recruiting.

2. The result of this is, that men are admitted into the service who are not only quite unable to bear up against the hardships and privations soldiers may, at any time, be called upon to undergo, but are even unfitted for the ordinary duties of a cantonment.

3. These men fill the hospitals, and, in many instances, have an undue share of leave granted to them on account of ill-health, thereby entailing extra duty on the strong and healthy men of the regiment. A commandant may sometimes, perhaps, find it difficult to reject the son or relation of a native officer, non-commissioned officer or old soldier of the regiment; but he should remember that his first duty is to the Government, and that, by admitting weakly lads, he incurs the grave responsibility of rendering his regiment inefficient.

4. The Government is thus in time of need, deprived of the services of men whom they have educated, and whom they may have paid for many years;—And the officers who succeed to the command are bequeathed the unenviable legacy of a regiment, physically unfit for hard work, a state of affairs for which they themselves are in no way to blame, and to change which they are powerless.

5. Native commissioned or non-commissioned officers sent in charge of recruiting parties should be most carefully selected, and the importance and responsibility of the duty should be clearly explained to them. They should understand that they are expected to exercise the greatest discrimination in the choice of recruits, and that any negligence on their part will tell against their future advancement equally with any other dereliction of duty.

6. How much can be done by commanding officers, who take an intelligent interest in the supervision of their regiments, has been proved to the Commander-in-Chief by the admirable condition of some of the battalions His Excellency has lately seen. What is possible in one regiment should be possible in all, and Sir Frederick Roberts feels sure that he will have the willing and hearty support of every commandant in his desire to render the Madras Army thoroughly efficient.

By order of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

The General Officers Commanding Mysore Division and Centre District will be good enough to detail officers to proceed to Deolali with the time-expired men and invalids from Bangalore, Wellington, and Madras, under orders for embarkation in the troop ship leaving Bombay on the 16th April next.

As the details from the Centre District and Mysore Division are to meet at Arkónam and proceed thence by troop-train, it will not be necessary for all the officers to accompany the party further than that station: it should therefore be so arranged that from Arkónam only the necessary complement of officers should Attention is directed to Horse Guards' G.O. No. 34 of 1st February 1882, amending section 19, "Queen's Regulations and Orders for the Army, 1881," the books in regimental possession being corrected accordingly.

As the question of the examination to be passed by Lieutenants to qualify for increased pay, appears not to be generally understood, the Commander-in-Chief is pleased to point out, in continuation of G.O.C.C. of 12th December 1881, that to qualify for increased pay Lieutenants must pass in (a) and (b), as laid down for Lieutenants before promotion to Captain. This examination can be passed at any time after an officer has completed one year's service, provided his commanding officer certifies that he has been dismissed all drills. No further examination in these subjects is required to qualify for promotion to Captain.

2. Lieutenants who, on June 30th 1881, were Second Lieutenants, may, if they prefer it, qualify for increased pay after completing one year's service and having been dismissed all drills, by passing in the lower standard of (a) and (b), hitherto prescribed as the qualifying examination for Second Lieutenants before promotion to Lieutenant, but this examination when passed merely qualifies for increased pay, and officers passing it must pass in (a) and (b) for Captain, as part of the qualifications for promotion to that rank.

BY

HIS EXCELLENCY THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

HEAD QUARTERS, OOTACAMUND,
5th July 1882.

No. 1.—The following general order, by His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief in India, is republished:—

Head Quarters, Simla, 23rd June 1882.

The accompanying Memorandum on the subject of musketry instruction, British troops, dated Horse Guards, 19th May 1882, is published for information and guidance.

General officers commanding divisions, districts and brigades will take immediate measures to carry out the orders of His Royal Highness the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief, and report for His Excellency's information, with as little delay as possible, the arrangements made for the introduction of the system in the annual course of 1882-83, which will be executed next cold season.

The Commander-in-Chief does not wish the leave of officers to be affected, unless this is absolutely necessary, but the steps taken must be such as will ensure the training in the prescribed manner of each officer before his troop or company commences the annual course.

The method of instruction is to be similar to that observed at the School of Musketry.

"MEMORANDUM."

"After the Annual Course of Musketry Instruction has been finished by all corps for this year, the musketry instruction of the trained soldier will in future be carried out by the Captains of troops and companies, assisted by their subaltern officers, under the frequent supervision of the officers commanding regiments and battalions, and under the immediate control of General Officers commanding districts or stations.

"2. The officers in command, or in temporary command of troops or companies, will be held responsible that the drills and the target and judging-distance practices of their men, are conducted in strict accordance with the Musketry Regulations with which they are to be thoroughly conversant. They must be able to impart instruction in the position, aiming, and judging-distance drills, and cleaning arms instruction; and in all the details of the annual course, including the duties of the register keepers, markers, section commanders, the use of stadiometers and range-finders, and signalling. They will in future prepare their troop or company musketry returns, and will be held responsible for their accuracy.

"3. In order that troop or company officers may be qualified to carry out this instruction efficiently, His Royal Highness the Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief desires that officers commanding battalions and depôts should at once have all their troop or company officers, who have not obtained certificates at Hythe, put through a course of musketry under a qualified Instructor of Musketry. In cases where the Musketry Instructor's services cannot be spared for this purpose, the officer commanding will direct one of his officers possessing a first-class Hythe certificate to instruct his brother officers so as to fit them to instruct their men in musketry, and to put them through the prescribed annual course of shooting. If no such qualified officer is available, the troop or company officers must be duly instructed by the Adjutant, and the Field Officer next in seniority to the officer commanding will attend and supervise their instruction.

"4. Until such time as it may be possible for all troop or company officers to attend the School of Musketry at Hythe, His Royal Highness expects them, by studying the Musketry Regulations, and availing themselves of the instruction which they can obtain regimentally, to do all in their power to fit themselves for the important duty of duly training their men to shoot well.

"5. In order that this musketry instruction of the troop or company officers may in no way whatever interfere with the daily routine of regimental and other military duties, His Royal Highness desires that it may take place every day in the week, Sunday excepted, in the early morning, and that it be continued until the officer commanding has satisfied himself, by personal examination of the officers, that they are competent to teach their men.

"6. His Royal Highness will hold commanding officers responsible that this course of instruction is begun as soon as possible after the receipt of this memorandum, and General Officers commanding districts or stations at home will report to the Adjutant-General on the 15th June the date when it was begun in each of the corps under their command, and on the 15th July and 15th September, as to the progress made. General Officers commanding abroad to make similar reports as soon as they can do so. In all cases when making these reports they will state their views and make any suggestions on the subject which they wish brought to His Royal Highness's notice.

"7. When the Officer commanding reports that in his opinion his officers are capable of instructing their men in musketry, the General Officer Commanding will cause them to be examined by a board consisting of three officers who have obtained first-class Hythe certificates, one of whom will, when possible, be the Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General of Musketry for the district. Examination papers for the use of these boards will be supplied by the Inspector-General of Musketry upon application from General Officers commanding, who will forward the proceedings, with their views and opinions endorsed on them, to the Inspector-General of Musketry.

"8. At least one Sergeant per troop or company will be instructed with the officers."

With regard to paragraph 6, General Officers will report to the Adjutant-General, Madras, through Assistant Adjutant-General for Musketry, on the 31st July the date on which this course of instruction was begun in each corps under their command, and on 31st August and 30th September as to the progress made.

2. With regard to paragraph 7, the proceedings to be sent to the Adjutant-General, Madras, through the Assistant Adjutant-General for Musketry.

By order of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

GODFREY CLERK, Brigadier-General,
Adjutant-General.

GENERAL ORDERS

BY

HIS EXCELLENCY THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

HEAD QUARTERS, OOTACAMUND,
12th October 1882.

No. 279.—Officers commanding divisions and districts will be pleased to assemble invaliding medical boards, in accordance with the following instructions, at stations within their respective commands occupied by British troops, to examine all men whom it is proposed to invalid. The Deputy Surgeon-General of the division or district, or in his absence the medical officer doing his duty, will sit as President.

2. Boards will be held twice during the trooping season, and will assemble at all stations in the command including convalescent depôts, the first early in October, and the second late in February. All such men as have become permanently unfit for service and are not likely to suffer by removal to England during the winter months, will be invalided by the boards assembling in October, the invaliding of the remainder being dealt with by the boards to be held about the end of February. The dates will be fixed by officers commanding divisions and districts, in communication with the Deputy Surgeon-General, and should be made to correspond with the instructions for movement and embarkation received from the Quartermaster-General.

3. Medical boards will refrain from recommending soldiers who have enlisted in India and are not desirous of leaving the country to be sent as invalids to England or the colonies, but soldiers enlisted in a particular colony, and who desire to return to the same, may be recommended by the board accordingly.

4. Regiments and batteries marching in relief before the assembly of invaliding boards will, as a general rule, take all invalids capable of travelling with them, if proceeding to stations on the line of railway nearer to the port of embarkation; but if otherwise, or moving to more distant stations, they will leave them behind.

5. Care will be taken that all documents connected with such men are completed, as far as possible, prior to the march of their regiment or battery, and handed over, the military documents to the officer commanding, and the medical documents to the medical officer in charge. In the event of there being no regiment or battery at the same station to which the invalids can be attached, the military documents should be made over to the officer detailed to proceed to the port of embarkation with the men; or in the event of no such officer being detailed, an experienced subaltern will be left in command of the party who will take charge of the documents in question. Arrangements will also be made in communication with the divisional authorities for the medical charge of the detachment, and the custody of the medical documents of the invalids.

6. With a view to ensure accuracy in their documents and accounts, officers commanding and in medical charge of detachments and hill and other depôts, will place themselves in direct communication with the regiments of all men about to be invalided. This must be done in good time, in order that all claims and other matters may be settled before the men belonging to depôts or detachments leave their stations. The rule directing the settlement of all claims before the men leave their regiments, will apply equally to invalids from depôts and detachments.

7. W.O.F. 821-A, "Return of invalids," will be used for all nominal returns of invalids.

8. This return will be prepared in duplicate by the medical officer in charge, and signed by himself and the officer commanding the corps prior to its submission to the medical board. Separate returns are required for each corps. In the case of insanes separate returns are required for each individual.

9. The medical board will fill up the column for discharge or change of climate, and the two copies will be thereafter certified by the Deputy Surgeon-General, and countersigned by the officer commanding the station.

10. One copy will be handed to the medical officer proceeding in charge of the invalids to Deolali, who will enter in this nominal list any changes that have occurred during the journey. This copy will be delivered to the medical officer of the Deolali depôt, and retained by him as a record as long as it may be considered necessary.

11. The duplicate copy will be transferred by the president of the board to the regimental or depôt military authorities, for their information, and for despatch by post to Deolali as directed in the Discharge Regulations. This copy of the return of invalids will be retained by the commandant of the Deolali depôt, until the close of the trooping season when it will be transferred to the Surgeon-General of Her Majesty's Forces, Bombay, for record in his office. In the case of invalids from Burmah the duplicate copy of W.O.F. 821-A will be sent by post to the Commandant, Poonamallee depôt, with the other discharge documents. No other station return of invalids will be necessary.

12. The commandant at Deolali will cause continuous nominal rolls, in duplicate, of the invalids embarked in each troopship, to be made out on the same form, one set for men of the Royal Artillery, and one set for all other troops. These will be handed to the medical officer proceeding in charge of the invalids to England, any casualty en route being duly recorded in the columns set apart for that purpose.

13. The Detailed Medical History of every man invalided to England (Army Form B-179, late W.O.F. 891) will be made out by the medical officer in charge in duplicate and in the case of insanes a Statement of Case (W.O.F. 891-A.) will be attached to each copy. These will be submitted to the board, who will ascertain that the information under each heading is complete; and after filling in the remarks and finding, will countersign the return. The proceedings will thereafter be approved and signed by the Deputy Surgeon-General. One copy, together with the Medical History Sheet (Army Form B-178, late W.O.F. 1143) will be handed to the medical officer proceeding in charge of the party to Deolali, for transfer to the medical officer in charge of the depôt. These documents will be afterwards entrusted to the medical officer proceeding to England in charge of the troopship. The duplicate copy will be transferred to the officer commanding the regiment for attachment to the "proceedings on discharge"* (Army Form B-268).

14. In the case of invalids who are eligible under the regulations, and who may elect to proceed to the colonies or to remain in India, one copy only of this return will be required for each man. This copy, after being signed by the invaliding medical board, and by the Deputy Surgeon-General, will be forwarded, together with the man's Medical History Sheet, through the military authorities to officers commanding regiments, to be transmitted with the proceedings on discharge, &c., to the Adjutant-General, Fort Saint George.

15. Forms for invaliding will be obtained from the Surgeon General, Her Majesty's Forces, Madras, in the usual manner.

16. Further instructions for the guidance of divisional invaliding boards will be issued by the Surgeon-General, Her Majesty's Forces.

* It is of the greatest importance that all medical documents of invalids should be handed over to the medical officer in charge immediately on embarkation.

17. As soon as invaliding medical boards in October and February respectively have completed their sittings, the Deputy Surgeon-General will prepare, in duplicate, a numerical return of the invalids, which he will forward to the general officer commanding the division or district for transmission as follows—one copy to the Quartermaster-General, Fort Saint George. Forms of this return will be supplied from the Surgeon-General's Office, Madras.

18. Invalids, who are so ill as to be unable to embark or bear the voyage for which they were designated, will be detained at Deolali until the sailing of the last troopship, and if the medical authorities then consider it absolutely necessary that they should proceed to England by the Cape route, His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief of the Bombay Presidency will order passages in private vessels to be provided for them.

19. The invaliding of military insanes will, with the approval of the Surgeon-General, Her Majesty's Forces, be carried out by special boards assembled under the orders of the local military and medical authorities, at as early a date before the commencement of the cold weather as possible, to enable provision to be made for their passages. Recommendations made by boards for the removal of insanes to a Lunatic Asylum, require the special sanction of the Surgeon-General before the men are allowed to leave their stations.

20. Invaliding medical documents of insanes will be endorsed with the word "Insane," in red ink, in the upper right hand corner, and will be disposed of as in the case of ordinary invalids, excepting the duplicate copy of the return of invalids (W O.F. 821-A.) which will be posted to the commandant of the Colaba depôt, instead of the Deolali depôt, accompanied by the admission order for the Colaba asylum by the Surgeon-General, Her Majesty's Forces, Madras.

21. The instructions contained in the Discharge Regulations are to be followed, so far as they apply to invalids; any subsidiary order necessary in furtherance of the foregoing arrangements being issued by general officers commanding divisions and districts.

By order of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

GODFREY CLERK, Brigadier-General,
Adjutant-General.

1. The above numbers, in some cases, are probable.

2. The time-expired, details and invalids, &c., should be despatched from their stations so as to arrive at Deolalee ten days prior to the date of sailing of the troopship from Bombay, insanes being sent to the Colaba Lunatic Asylum about the same time under suitable escort of time-expired men.

3. Despatching officers will arrange accordingly, providing for troop or mixed trains as may be necessary, report of the arrangements proposed to be made for the movement of the details being made to the Quartermaster-General's Office some time previously.

4. The details from Cannanore should be despatched by sea from Cannanore to Bombay so as to arrive at Deolalee ten clear days before embarkation.

5. The details from Burma should be despatched to Madras by British India Steam Navigation steamers, those to embark in 27th December troopship by steamer leaving Rangoon 6th December 1882, those for embarkation in troopships in April by first British India Steam Navigation steamer leaving Rangoon in March 1883.

6. It having been frequently represented that much inconvenience is caused by troops taking with them to Bombay a large amount of baggage in excess of regulations, and of unauthorized dimensions, the Commander-in-Chief desires that General Officers will call the special attention of officers proceeding in command of troops to the regulations on the subject.

Paras. 134 to 149, Transport Regulations, Part I, as modified by G.O., 86 of 1879, and G.Os., 79 and 156 of 1880, republished in Madras G.O. of 1879, pages 271 and 279, and pages 121 and 206 of 1880.

7. In view to obviating the inconvenience experienced by widows, women unaccompanied by their husbands, and orphan children, on arrival at Portsmouth, owing to their baggage being placed in the wrong railway trucks, "red star" paper labels for their boxes will be provided at Deolalee and Bombay. On disembarkation all boxes, &c., labelled with the "red star" will be collected in one place and subsequently distributed to the owners.

8. Timely notice of all movements must be given by the General Officer commanding the Division or District from which the troops proceed to the General Officer commanding the Division or District through which they will pass en route, in view to the necessary arrangement being made for their reception and onward progress.

9. Returns and Nominal Rolls of time-expired, &c., actually to proceed from each division to Deolalee, &c., should be sent to the Quartermaster-General's Office, Fort Saint George, as soon as possible; copies of the same being furnished to the Brigadier-General commanding Bombay District.

10. Officers to proceed in charge of the details will be detailed under the orders of the Adjutant-General.

11. The attention of despatching officers is requested to Quartermaster-General's Circular, No. 6232, dated 27th August 1880.

With reference to the foregoing order General Officers commanding Divisions and Districts concerned will be good enough to arrange for the proper complement of officers to accompany the details to Deolalee.

The officers detailed for this duty will travel to and fro on duty at the public expense.

All the men's discharge documents are to be disposed of as ordered in the "Regulations for the discharge of soldiers of the British Forces serving in India."

By order of His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief.

Adjutant-General.

GENERAL ORDERS

BY

HIS EXCELLENCY THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Madras, 7th December 1882.

No. 392.—The annexed returns of the musketry practice of British and Native Troops in the Madras Presidency for 1881-82 are published for general information.

British Cavalry.—There is an increase of 1·81 per man over that of last year in the Figure of Merit; but which, according to the Hythe standard, is still only "moderate."

The 14th King's Hussars were exempted from the annual course, the regiment having returned to India from service in South Africa late in the musketry season.

Native Cavalry.—In the Native Cavalry, including the Governor's Body Guard, 1,272 men were exercised and made a Figure of Merit of 45·52.

British Infantry.—5,914 drilled soldiers were exercised in the British Infantry with very satisfactory results, the Figure of Merit being 114·00, which, according to the Hythe standard, may be classed as "good." The 2nd Battalion Hampshire Regiment heads the list again this year with the "very good" average of 126·59.

Native Infantry.—The Figure of Merit is still only "moderate" and exhibits a decrease of ·69 points per man on that of the previous year, a result which cannot be considered satisfactory.

Non-Exercised Men.—The percentage of non-exercised men is satisfactory, every available man except those exempted by regulation, in hospital, prison, or on the recruiting service, having been trained.

Annual Course—Returns.—The annual course has been regularly conducted and the musketry documents generally have been carefully kept, and great pains continue to be taken with the instruction of non-commissioned officers in keeping registers.

Recruits.—The shooting of the recruits shows a marked improvement on that of the previous year; only a very small percentage having failed to obtain the required standard qualifying them for transfer to the ranks.

Field Firing.—This practice was carried out by brigades at Bangalore, Secunderabad, Trichinopoly, Cannanore, Rangoon, and Palaveram, and at all other stations, except Tounghoo and Mangalore, where no suitable ground is available, by battalions and half battalions. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief is glad to learn from the reports of Superintending Officers that the fire of the men generally was well under control of company and section leaders.

All ranks, however, apparently require more practice in Judging Distance.

In a few instances the instructions contained in paras. 227, British Musketry Regulations, and 235, Native Musketry Regulations, about dividing the attack into three stages and counting the hits at the conclusion of each stage were not observed. General Officers commanding divisions and districts are requested to invite the attention of Superintending Officers to the instruction contained in the regulations referred to on this head.

Firing at a Moving object.—This exercise, which was substituted for "Independent Firing" in the Native Infantry, in accordance with Adjutant-General's Circular Memorandum No. $\frac{2702}{E}$ dated Simla, 26th September 1881, was carried out with satisfactory results.

Collective Firing by Companies.—This practice which is intended as preliminary to Brigade or Battalion Field Firing, and which by the same memorandum was ordered to form part of the annual course, was also satisfactorily carried out.

Native Officers.—His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief is glad to learn that the Native Officers generally have been well reported upon by Commanding Officers; but it is observed that they still require more practical instruction and self-confidence before they can be considered efficient company officers.

Non-commissioned Officers.—Attention is invited to the instructions contained in Adjutant-General's confidential memorandum No. 4583, dated 18th July 1881.

EASTERN DISTRICT.							ATTACK.—The 19th Native Infantry—divided into 6 companies—and the 12th Native Infantry were drawn up in mass of quarter columns in a garden surrounded by a thick hedge, facing towards the enemy's position, distant about 1,300 yards, situated at the foot of a long hill, having hills on the left and being open on the left flank. The 12th Native Infantry with 2 companies formed as a "fighting line," two in "support" and four in "reserve," advanced to attack in front and as far as possible pave the way for the general advance and final assault. This regiment was also supported in its rear by the 19th Native Infantry, after advancing about 300 yards, the "fighting line" was found to be numerically too weak to cover the required extent of ground, so was reinforced by the supports; even then as it became necessary to incline a little to the right, the "fighting line" was not sufficiently extended, so was further reinforced by a company on either flank; the left flank covering the dispositions of the 19th Native Infantry, which was observed to be moving along the bund to take up a position for attack, on the right flank of the enemy. As the advance continued the whole of the 12th Native Infantry became absorbed in the fighting line, with the exception of the two flank companies which were kept slightly in rear in reserve in case of emergency. The 19th Native Infantry was directed to follow the 12th Regiment; when the fighting line had advanced about 600 yards from place of original formation, and when clear of the cover alluded to, to deploy into columns of double-companies at deploying intervals, and to follow in this formation supporting the 12th Native Infantry some distance, and then gradually to incline to the left and make a flank attack on the right of the enemy's position. The desired position having been gained, the column was halted and extended in order of attack under cover of a tank bund, from whence the attack was made on the right flank of the enemy's position, fire being opened at about 600 yards range. The fighting line was then reinforced by right and centre supports, the left support being retained in rear of the left flank to repel any counterflank movement; the advance was continued by short rushes of alternate double-companies, the left being gradually brought round, so as to envelope the right flank of the position. From about 500 yards to 350 yards the fire appeared to take considerable effect and was chiefly directed against the Artillery which had apparently hitherto escaped with but little damage. The firing consisted principally of volleys by groups—half-companies and companies—which were evidently more effective than independent firing. The final fire was delivered on the extreme left at about 200 yards range and on the right at about 250 yards. Remarks by Brigadier-General Stewart, C.B.—The attack progressed satisfactorily. The flanks of the fighting line were extended and wheeled up by degrees to concentrate the fire on the position, the 3rd battalion of the brigade (supposed) being deployed and approaching the 2nd line. The 19th moved under cover of a bund and attacked the right of the enemy's position. Both regiments went through the exercise coolly and intelligently, and, considering it was the first parade of the sort, I was satisfied with the performance. The 12th Native Infantry was supposed to be the leading battalion of the flank brigade of a division deployed. Then to mask the deployment of the column in rear and not to be outflanked myself, I thought it advisable to put into fighting order a large part of its force and sustain the fight single-handed till the regiments in rear had deployed and were ready to co-operate. The order in para. 236, Musketry Regulations, directing the practice into 3 stages was unfortunately overlooked.

BANGALORE DIVISION.							POSITION ATTACKED.—The position to be attacked was represented by a "Plevna" redoubt with a shelter trench on each flank thrown back about 100 yards. A gun with small gun detachment was placed at the salient of the redoubt; 3 guns in gun-pits in rear of left flank and 3 guns behind an epaulment in rear of right flank. Supports and reserves were represented by screens, the former in folds of the ground, the latter on the reverse slope of the hill. About 1,000 yards in front of the redoubt was a strong outpost with Cavalry supports (represented by single screens for videttes, and large screens for half-troops,) and about 700 yards on right and left fronts of this outpost were smaller ones—also with Cavalry supports. ATTACK.—The division was divided into two brigades. The 1st brigade executed field firing on the 28th June and the 2nd brigade on the 30th idem. METHOD OF ATTACK—1st Brigade.—The Cavalry in three squadrons attacked the two outer outposts, dismounting odd and even files alternately and skirmishing from 600 to 200 yards (estimated distance). On the completion of this practice a squadron attacked the main outpost.

							The Infantry of the 1st brigade extended for the attack at about 1,200 yards (estimated distance) from the redoubt. (The Queen's Own Sappers and Miners conformed to all the movements of the Oxfordshire Light Infantry, but did not open fire till arrival at the 2nd stage, they being armed with the Artillery Snider carbine which is only sighted to 600 yards.) Lieutenant-General Payn, C.B., remarks that as he was desirous of trying a system of attack recommended by M. Mazel, the ordinary mode of advancing to the attack as laid down in the Field Exercise was departed from, and only two stages were fired. 2nd Brigade.—This brigade advanced to the attack according to regulation, executing three stages.
CEDED DISTRICT.							GENERAL IDEA.—An enemy is supposed to be in position at the village of Toomtah, south of Bellary, and to have advanced during the night and encamped at the base of the Copper Mountains, where they were discovered at daybreak by Colonel Claridge, 37th Grenadiers, who had been detailed by the General Officer Commanding the District to conduct the operations. THE ATTACK—First Stage.—The Royal Fusiliers, on arrival, took possession of an earthwork on the Bellagul Road about 2,100 yards from the enemy's position. Selected shots commenced the attack by volley and independent firing from behind the earthworks. The remainder of the battalion then advanced under cover (as was supposed) of the fire of the guns in the earthworks to within 1,400 yards range, when they opened fire by volleys on the enemy's position, advancing towards it after each volley. The 27th and 37th Regiments, having arrived on the scene of action, at once proceeded to reinforce the Fusiliers and took up the firing at 1,050 yards range. Second Stage.—The enemy having advanced to the attack under cover of its Artillery threw out skirmishers and supports to repel the attack on its position, but were met by the Fusiliers and 27th Native Infantry who advanced to the attack together, 37th Grenadiers in reserve. The Fusiliers and 27th, owing to want of ammunition, were then retired under cover of the 37th Grenadiers, and the enemy was supposed to be beaten back to its original position. Third Stage.—The brigade advanced towards the enemy's position protected by skirmishers from the Grenadiers, and on nearing it, the Fusiliers and 27th formed for attack, the Grenadiers, being withdrawn, formed their reserve. The final attack on the enemy's position was then made, and on the Fusiliers and 27th Native Infantry retiring (under supposed heavy losses) they were covered by the Grenadiers in reserve; which regiment made a flank attack on the enemy's left. The Fusiliers and 27th Regiment having retired to their original ground, reformed for attack under cover of the fire of the Grenadiers, and the position was supposed to be carried and the enemy defeated. GENERAL REMARKS—(By Colonel Claridge, superintending).—The distance at which the selected shots fired was rather under-estimated, but not so much, it is considered, as to cause the bullets fall wide of the position had they reached it. As a rule the distance was well estimated and the advance was steady and well performed, good control being exercised by company and section leaders. The final attack was made without any hurry or confusion, the direction of the fire being particularly good. The firing was entered into with great interest by the troops themselves, and afforded means of much practical instruction.

HYDERABAD SUBSIDIARY FORCE.							POSITION ATTACKED.—The position selected was a ridge about 1,700 yards due west of the village of Kanageegodium : extent of front 440 yards due east. ENEMY'S FORCE.—One battery of Artillery, 2 squadrons of Cavalry, and 2 battalions of Infantry. FIGHTING LINE.—Represented by 467 chatties with 12 dummy officers in shelter trench, 333 chatties as supports, 8 screens as reserves, placed 250 paces in rear of supports. The supports and reserves were so placed on the reverse slope of the ridge that at no time were they visible to the attacking party. Artillery were represented by 4 dummy guns on the right flank of the enemy's position and 2 on the left, the latter in gun-pits. On either flank, to the rear, 3 canvas screens 9 × 9 were placed to represent a squadron of Cavalry. THE ATTACK—First Day.—The attacking brigade was formed in order of attack, i.e., fighting-line, supports, and reserves, and the attack was divided into three stages. First Stage.—The fighting line opened fire by trial volleys of sections and continued advancing about 30 yards at a time until within 600 yards range, firing then ceased. Second Stage.—The fighting line being reinforced by supports, advanced by short rushes of alternate double-companies, and continued advancing in this manner until within about 400 yards of the enemy's position. Third Stage.—The fighting line was then reinforced by the reserves and advanced by short rushes, firing by volleys on being halted after each rush. When within 200 yards range independent firing was taken up by the whole line. SECOND DAY—Position.—Same as on the first day. First Stage.—The attack on this occasion was conducted in the same manner as on the previous day, excepting that the South Wales Borderers opened fire at 1,200 yards, while the Native Infantry did not fire till within 1,000 yards range. Second and Third Stages.—Same mode as on previous day. GENERAL REMARKS—First Day.—The firing of the men of both Native Regiments engaged was steady, deliberate, and well under control of company and section commanders. The volleys were well delivered, but at rather unnecessarily long intervals. Second Day.—The firing of the South Wales Borderers was steady and well under control: there was no hurry and confusion; but, owing to the nature of the ground, the battalion had to advance over and to the very secure position of the enemy, the result of the firing was not good. The undulating nature of the ground frequently necessitated portions of the line firing in the standing or kneeling position instead of lying down; and the very hard nature of the ground rendered it impossible to tell where the bullets struck in the first stage and partly so in the second. The firing of the men of the 9th Native Infantry was fairly under the control of the company and section commanders, and in the second stage the volleys appeared to be well delivered.

TRICHINOPOLY.							POSITION ATTACKED.—Enemy's skirmishers, 290 strong, were represented by dummies; the supports and reserves with a half battery of guns on the right flank by screens, and the reserves resting against the bund of a river, on the top of which were placed 300 chatties painted white. THE ATTACK—First Stage.—The brigade consisting of the 6th, 21st, and 30th Regiments N.I., having been formed in line of quarter columns at deploying intervals formed for attack. Each battalion was composed of 6 companies 2 formed the fighting-line, 2 in support, and 2 in reserve. Fire was opened at 610 yards from the enemy's skirmishers. Ten rounds were fired at this range, 4 in volleys and 6 independently. The volleys were well fired, the section commanders giving the distance. As a rule the distance was under-estimated. Second Stage.—The fighting line was reinforced by the supports, then the whole line advanced against the enemy's supports. In this stage also 4 rounds were fired by volleys and 6 independently, the volleys being delivered by companies. Third Stage.—The fighting line was further reinforced by the reserves. The whole force now advanced and fired 4 volleys by companies, followed by 6 rounds firing independently, advancing to within 220 yards of the enemy's position. GENERAL REMARKS.—The morning was fine, but the atmosphere was heavy and dull, with very little breeze from the north, the smoke lay on the ground, so much so that it was impossible after firing one round to discern the enemy's whereabouts. The ground was very favorable to the enemy, as the number of hillocks covered with prickly-pear between the enemy's supports and skirmishers had the effect of a stop-butt, the consequence was in the "first stage" of the attack the enemy's supports and reserves suffered but very little. The volleys were fired by sections, half-companies, and companies. The section commanders as a rule appeared to understand their duties, but are apt to keep the men too long at the "Present" before giving the word "Fire."

Field Firing by Battalions and Half Battalions.

Corps.	Station.	Stages.	Estimated Distance.	Actual Distance.	Number of Men firing.	Percentage of Hits to Rounds fired.	Description of the objects, screens, &c., representing the post or position attacked; general remarks on attacking forces, &c.
2nd Battalion Somersetshire Light Infantry.	Kamptee	1st Stage ..	800	1200	Not stated.	5·04	The field firing was carried out by half battalions. Brigadier-General de Berry observes that the command to "fire" was given too quick, not allowing time enough for men to obtain their aim. The men appeared more unsteady than usual, coming down to the "ready" position directly after firing and looking to see if their shots had hit.

2nd Battalion Bedfordshire Regiment ..	Thayetmyo	1st ..	1100	1050	Not stated.	3·61	The position attacked was a brigade in order of attack represented by chatties and Artillery represented by screens. The morning on commencing was very hazy, and the sun on rising shone in the face of the firers. All through the practice the smoke hung about and obscured the view. The range was very quickly and accurately found, especially at the long distances, by some very good shots.

2nd Battalion Hampshire Regiment ..	Cannanore	1st ..	1000	1200	Not stated.	2·78	Brigadier-General Buck reports the firing as "good," considering the smallness of the objects aimed at, the chatties and dummies representing the enemy's skirmishers being placed on the ground-level. The volleys were well delivered, and the firing also well controlled by company and section leaders.

1st Battalion Essex Regiment	Pallavaram	1st ..	800	785	133	6·45	Brigadier-General Stewart, C.B., remarks: The true effect of the fire on the enemy's "post" cannot be well estimated from the hits recorded in the table, as the crests of the shrubs were found to be knocked away and quantities of lead were detected among the rocks occupied by the enemy's guns. The morning's work was considered very instructive and interesting for both officers and men.

2nd Battalion Middlesex Regiment ..	Rangoon	1st ..	1200	1260	49	4·21	Colonel Colquhoun remarks that the low percentage of hits may be attributed to a mistake in firing too many rounds in the first stage, also errors in estimating distances and the fact of some of the men having suffered much of late from fever, which, after their long march across paddy fields, rendered them very unsteady for firing; moreover they were placed at a great disadvantage in not being able to fire lying down, but for these causes better results might certainly have been obtained.

3rd Madras Light Cavalry	Secunderabad	1st ..	560	600	190	5·78	Colonel Arbuthnot reports. The men in the "independent" firing in the first stage appeared unsteady, and many fired at long distances "standing." It appears an open question whether much reliance can be placed on the "independent" firing of a large body. The volley firing was attended with much better results, the men being more under control of their officers.

2nd Regiment M.N.I. (E and F Companies).	Moulmein	1st ..	1150	1200	Not stated.	5·13	Colonel Jenkins observes that the direction of the fire when concentrated on special objects was good, but the distances were generally under-estimated, as a large number of bullets were observed to fall short. The practice between 1,200 and 900 yards was very ineffective; this may be partly accounted for by the difficulty which was experienced in seeing the object to be fired at at distances beyond 600 yards in consequence of the misty haze that covered the ground.

The men fired deliberately, steadily, and under complete control. Lieutenant-Colonel de Lousada in command of the "fighting line" was most accurate in estimating distance.

The firing by section volleys was executed with great steadiness, but the independent firing was wanting in that respect. It was also observed that cover was not sufficiently taken advantage of.

The men took every advantage of cover afforded them, and great care was observed in delivering their fire steadily in volleys. The practice may be considered satisfactory, considering it is the first time the wing has practised field firing.

11th Regiment M.N.I.	Rangoon	1st ..	1200	1150	127	10·92	The volleys were fired by sections from right to left of the line which General Burton remarks hardly represented what would have been carried out on service. The section leaders did not supervise the firing of sections and groups as well as they might have done, neither did the men pay sufficient attention to adjusting their sights, and were somewhat unsteady in delivering their volleys by the unequal pauses between the commands "Present" and "Fire."

16th ,, ...	Raipore	1st ..	Not stated.	1100	138	2·58	Colonel Bates remarks: The ground selected was as advantageous to the enemy as it was to the attacking party; results from ricochet fire were almost impossible on either side—no bullets that did not pass well over the enemy's front line could possibly reach either his reserve or supports. As a rule the men fired too low, most of the bullets taking the ground in front of the enemy's first line. It was a practical demonstration of the necessity for clear shooting and not trusting to ricochets.
