No. 1

10 January 1889

Verdict

Deaths from exhaustion the result of severe burns caused by the large fire at the Park on 31st December 1886, which the jury find due to purely accidental circumstances. The jury return a special verdict with special recommendation which the Coroner accepts and files.

Finding

The jury find that Nathanias Sawyer met his death by burns received during the fire which took place at the Park Fair on the night of the 31st Decr.; that that fire arose purely from accident; and the jury find that due and reasonable precautions were not taken by the Fair Committee to prevent or to extinguish fire, and are also of opinion that the placing of naked lights in close proximity to the walls of the booths, considering the inflammable materials of which the booths were composed, was very imprudential.

The jury find that the means of escape and ingress into the booth enclosure were sufficient.

The jury find that the existing arrangements for extinguishing fires, in so large a city as Madras, are most unsatisfactory as to the equipment and number of fire engines and desire to call attention to the absence of fixed responsibility.

The jury find that the charges loosely brought against the Police are wholly without foundation.

The jury consider that legislation is desirable for

for vesting full powers in some responsible Officer, for the supervision and Control of the resorts of large assemblies, where the safety of the public is concerned.

The Jury recommend that communication by telephone be established between all police stations in Madras.

23rd April 1887

Verdict

Death from injuries received to the base of her skull caused by voluntarily throwing herself out of a carriage and pair, the horses of which had run away

The jury find that Amy Lucy Sullivan came by her death on the 22nd April 1887 on Wallyak road by reason of injuries received to the base of her skull caused by voluntarily throwing herself out of a carriage and pair, the horses of which had run away; the jury further find that the said running away was caused by circumstances purely accidental; but as to said, upon examination and comparison with other splinter bars, that the splinter bar of the said Carriage was altogether unfit for the use to which it was put; that it was unprotected by any iron plating; that it was further weakened by two large bolt holes bored in a portion of its length not intended for such purpose; that its thickness was insufficient to secure safety and that it has been rendered transferred to its present carriage from some other carriage, and has been rendered dangerous by such transfer by reason of its being bolted to the present carriage by bolts inside the old ones, thus rendering the leverage on the ends of the splinter bar much greater than it was originally constructed for. the jury find that the loss of control over the horse was due to the fracture of the splinter bar and therefore desire that a strong representative should should be made to try Captain against a carelessness which has resulted so fatally.
