A vertical cross-section of a plant stem, likely from a dicotyledonous plant. The image shows a central pith (medulla) surrounded by a ring of vascular bundles. Each bundle consists of a central xylem (darker, circular structures) and a surrounding phloem (lighter, more cellular structures). The outer layer of the stem is the epidermis, which appears as a thin, dark line.
